VC releases list, attaches conditions

POW exchange deadlocked

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The United States announced today it has received a list of 32 American prisoners from the Viet Cong but indicated that new conditions attached to their release are unacceptable and must be negotiated.

The Communists proposed that the repatriation of the last group of 139 American prisoners held by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong could begin Monday if the conditions are met.

A spokesman for the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission said that a letter accompanying the list "appears to set forth conditions, some of which are not in accordance with the agreement and the protocols" of the Jan. 27 cease-fire.

The spokesman emphasized that Brig. Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, "accepted the list on the basis that there are absolutely no conditions attached to it."

Wickham, the spokesman said, advised the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations that the accompanying letter "will be considered by his authorities just as would other four-party Joint Military Commission correspondence."

The Viet Cong list included one American captured a day before the signing of the ceasefire and who was not mentioned before. He was identified as Lt. Cmdr. Philip A. Kientzler, a Navy flier reported shot down below the demilitarized zone.

The Communists proposed all 32 be released at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport. The release of 107 American prisoners held by North Vietnam would follow.

A Viet Cong spokesman said the Communists already had sent a letter to the Americans recommending that the release begin Monday and end Wednesday, the deadline for the repatriation of all American prisoners and for completion of U.S. troop withdrawals under terms of the agreement.

"The United States delegation already has accepted the list and the plan for release but has not yet replied about the U.S. troop withdrawal," the spokesman said.

There was no mention of nine American prisoners held by the Communists in Laos. A U.S. demand that North Vietnam provide a list of these prisoners and the time and place they would be released had delayed the release of the last group of American prisoners in Vietnam, which initially had been planned to begin today and end Sunday.

The Viet Cong proposal made the prisoner release contingent on these demands:

1. The last phase of the withdrawal of American forces shall begin on Monday, the day the United States begins to receive its prisoners. The prisoner repatriation and the withdrawal of American forces should be completed by Wednesday.

2. The 825 American military personnel attached to the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission should be withdrawn by 8 a.m. Saigon time, Thursday, March 29.

3. The 159 Marines attached to the U.S. Embassy staff as guards must be withdrawn.

4. After 8 a.m. Thursday, the only U.S. military team in Vietnam will be one charged with accounting for Americans listed as missing in action in North and South Vietnam.

Cold preventive works, but cost remains too high

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A British-American research team says it has tested successfully a substance that prevents the common cold but says it now costs too much for practical use in staving off man's sneezes and sniffles.

A Stanford University scientist and three British researchers reported they tested the substance, called Interferon, on human volunteers in Britain.

The American, Dr. Thomas C. Merigan, noted that Interferon has been used in Russia and Finland and even is available over the counter in small quantities in the Soviet Union.

"It is a feasible approach," Merigan, chief of the division of infectious diseases at Stanford Medical School, said of Interferon's ability to prevent colds.

"But whether it becomes practical depends on whether we can gain more production and make it economically or get other means of application."

An effective dose of Interferon costs several thousand dollars to produce by present methods, Merigan and his British colleagues reported in the current issue of Lancet, a British medical journal.

They described Interferon as a protein derived from white blood cells infected by viruses. They said the infected cells secrete a substance that interferes with — or prevents — viral infection of other cells.

Merigan and the three British researchers — Drs. Sylvia E. Reed, Thomas S. Hall and David A. J. Tyrrell — said they tested the substance at Harvard Hospital, Salisbury, Wiltshire, England.

Although "years and years" away from a practical application, the substance could become useful in the future with simplified administration methods and improved production techniques, possibly even laboratory synthesis, Merigan said.

Claim Uganda being invaded

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Uganda claimed today that a 3,500-man force from Tanzania was attempting an invasion.

It said the invasion was planned by President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Milton Obote, the deposed Ugandan president, and Nyerere would have "to bear the blame for the consequences."

Radio Uganda said advance elements of the force had been captured well inside Uganda.

The broadcast said the invaders comprised Tanzanian troops and Asians expelled by President Idi Amin's military regime last year.

The radio did not indicate if there had been fighting between the invaders and Ugandan army soldiers or the extent of casualties, if any. It said some of those captured were Asians.

Relations between the two East African nations have been strained since January 1971, when Amin overthrew Obote in a military coup.

Obote took refuge in Tanzania, whose president had refused to recognize Amin.

Hostilities between the two countries reached flashpoint last September, when Uganda claimed that an 8,500-strong invasion force made up of Obote supporters launched an attack on their homeland from Tanzania.

Uganda also charged that Tanzania had armed and equipped that force and that it enjoyed the full support of the Tanzanian government.

Bloodshed continues in Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — A Roman Catholic civilian was killed and his brother seriously wounded during the night after two offduty British soldiers were lured to their deaths and two others critically hurt.

The civilian was killed by a hail of bullets when he opened his apartment door to let his brother in. The gunmen apparently marched up behind the brother, fired, then fled in a car.

The three deaths brought Northern Ireland's known fatalities in more than 3½ years of violence to 758.

They occurred less than 15 hours after the Irish Republican Army rejected British peace plans and spurned moderate Catholic pleas to lay down their arms.

Police called the slaying of the soldiers a "fiendish crime — the worst here in four years." Army headquarters said: "We are absolutely revolted by these cold-blooded murders."

Four soldiers, unarmed and dressed in civilian clothes, were enjoying an off-duty drink at a hotel near Belfast when they got into a conversation with two girls.

Demos end party meet in harmony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats have concluded an amicable series of meetings that resulted in a series of compromises.

Despite several rebuffs in the selection of six members Friday afternoon for the party's executive committee, chairman Robert S. Strauss told reporters he was pleased.

Alabama's Democratic chairman Robert Vance, an executive committee member, put it another way: "This was a magnificent meeting because everybody goes away mildly dissatisfied."

At its two-hour session, the executive committee rejected at least two Strauss choices, Philadelphia Democratic leader Peter Camille and Utah's Wayne Black, and picked a list that included a black, a Mexican-American and a proMcGovern labor leader.

Earlier, old-line party leaders failed in a bid to remove more reform-minded members of the executive committee after the full National Committee ratified a compromise slate of 25 at-large members.

Although the meetings saw organized labor merge with a larger voice in the party organization, the only union official who won a place on the 25-member executive committee was Floyd Smith of Cleveland, president of the International Association of Machinists and an all-out supporter of the McGovern-Shriver ticket last fall when most of organized labor stayed neutral.

Gray nomination in limbo; eye strength of Nixon help

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an apparent strategy move, Senate supporters of L. Patrick Gray III have put hearings on his nomination to be FBI director into a week of limbo to gauge administration support.

The move came as the White House said once again it supports his nomination.

A Senate Judiciary Committee spokesman Friday said that the hearings will not be resumed before the week after next.

Indications were that Gray's supporters are waiting for a signal on whether the administration was going "to put some muscle" into seeking votes for Gray or was washing its hands of him.

But at the Florida White House, an administration spokesman said there is no intention to withdraw the nomination.

"The President has submitted Mr. Gray's nomination. The President supports that nomination," he said.

Gray, acting FBI director since last May, has testified he has not lobbied senators outside the hearing for votes in his behalf and had turned down offers from friends to try to help him.

He said he had "to sit here in this pit" and try through his testimony to convince committee members and other senators they should support his nomination to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover.

At the outset, Gray's chances of winning confirmation looked good, with Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader, the only senator who openly opposed his appointment.

But after the hearings began to center on the FBI's investigation of the Watergate case, even supporters of the nomination said the outcome would be doubtful.

It was during the hearings Thursday that Gray said it was "probably correct" that White House counsel John W. Dean III had lied to FBI agents last June during its investigation of the Watergate case.

Byrd had asked Gray if Dean had not lied in telling an agent that he would have to check on whether E. Howard Hunt, one of the Watergate defendants, had an office in the White House executive offices.

The White House Friday said that any claim that Dean had lied was "reprehensible, unfortunate, unfair and incorrect."

Most officials agree alcohol worst U.S. drug problem

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal commission report listed alcohol as the nation's No. 1 drug problem and an Associated Press survey of persons involved in drug education, rehabilitation and enforcement shows widespread agreement—but only about alcohol.

"You can buy it and not have to steal a TV set every day," said Dr. George Gay, an official at Haight Asbury Free Medical Clinic in San Francisco. "Far and away it's the most dangerous drug we have."

"I think they're putting the narcotics addiction problem into perspective quantitatively and qualitatively — namely that heroin is not the No. 1 problem," said Dr. Robert Newman, assistant commissioner for New York City addiction programs.

The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse rated alcohol the No. 1 drug problem in a 482-page report issued Thursday.

The report also said government efforts might be perpetuating drug use rather than discouraging it, urged creation of a new antidrug agency, said public notions about drug use are largely wrong and reaffirmed its year-old recommendation to end criminal penalties for marijuana usage.

The report is the result of a two-year study; the reaction to its findings on drugs other than alcohol was more varied:

—David Roth of Cleveland's Free Clinic was "surprised to see they stood firm with their beliefs. I thought they'd try to make it look ... not so radical." But Roth said he's pessimistic about the commission's recommendations having any effect in view of President Nixon's call for tougher drug laws.

Man drowns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus man whose canoe capsized in the churning, frigid waters of the Olentangy River here Friday drowned despite dramatic efforts to rescue him.

A second person, possibly a young boy, also was believed drowned, although dragging operations failed to turn up the body. The search was to continue today.

Fire Department rescue crews summoned to the scene by witnesses to the accident pulled the body of George S. Zactaury, 29, from the water.

Beef prices may drop

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The president of the American National Cattlemen's Association says the price consumers pay for beef should drop in two to four weeks as supplies increase and weather improves.

John Trotman told a news conference on Friday that he looks for the market to stabilize at a slightly lower level and for wholesale beef prices to fall by several cents per pound.

He said higher prices were caused by demands for beef already in short supply because of severe weather. He said weather killed 200,000 cattle and slowed the rate of growth of millions more.

Despite the losses, Trotman said, the cow herd is up six per cent.

Report babies were subjected to experiments

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe says a University of Texas research team deprived 17 infants of a food substance essential for their development in an experiment conducted in 1956-57.

In a story in today's editions, the Globe said the researchers deprived the infants for up to 13 weeks of linoleic acid, a fatty substance contained in mother's milk, even though they knew a diet without this food had produced skin breakdown, "marked emaciation" and possible damage to the brain or spinal chord in animals.

The study, published in 1959, was sent to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., by Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint of Harvard Medical School, the Globe said.

Poussaint told Kennedy in a covering letter that he hoped the material would serve as "documentation that will enable you to gain the support for legislation that involves human subjects in research."

Tag slogan stirs fuss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan's press secretary said Friday that it was unbecoming of the lieutenant governor to accuse Gilligan of breaking the law.

Robert Tenenbaum said Gilligan would have no comment on John Brown's accusations that the governor ignored Ohio law and is costing Ohio taxpayers $250,000 by having a safety slogan painted on 1973 license plates.

Brown, a Republican, said the slogan "Seat Belts Fastened?" caused about 25 per cent of the plates to warp and made painting them difficult. He said at 10½ cents a plate, the governor wasted a quarter of a million dollars.

He said Ohio law specifically states what can appear on license plates, and slogans are not on the list.

POW calls draft dodgers 'cowards and malcontents'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Repatriated prisoner of war James H. Kasler, who said he refused to meet antiwar demonstrators in Hanoi despite being tortured, Friday branded draft dodgers as "cowards and malcontents."

The 46-year-old Air Force colonel from Indianapolis told newsmen that perhaps 5 per cent of the evaders had valid reasons.

"The remaining 95 per cent are cowards and malcontents just as in any other war," he said at a news conference held at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base prior to his departure for home.

Kasler said POWs were tortured to force antiwar statements from them as early as the spring of 1967 offensive. He didn't go into details but referred to the treatment of prisioners by the North Vietnamese as "barbarous."

Kasler said he felt the North Vietnamese were deluded by antiwar statements into thinking time was on their side and that America's will to pursue the war was waning.

"You wouldn't believe the impact it (the antiwar movement) had on the North Vietnamese."

He said there may have been factional opinions among prisoners on war policy, but 95 per cent of the prisoners supported President Nixon.

Kasler indicated a belief that the prisoners still would be in North Vietnamese hands if the United States had pulled out of the war without negotiating their release.

"If someone had crawled to Hanoi on his knees, we would still be there," he said. "There is only one language the North Vietnamese understand and President Nixon speaks that language."

Kasler described the bombing of Hanoi last Christmas as "one of the most awesome sights in history."

He said he watched the bombing from the "Hanoi Hilton" prison camp, where he was a compound commander, as shock waves rolled over the walls.

"The North Vietnamese were ready to quit," he said. "The fires burned all night."

Kasler was an F105 pilot shot down in August 1966. He said he broke his right leg in two places in escaping his plane and later was operated on when a bone infection developed. He said the leg has healed.

He wants to continue flying and to command a fighter wing, Kasler said. He plans to go to the Air Force War College in Montgomery, Ala.

Warming!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A warming trend will continue throughout Ohio into Sunday, according to the National Weather Service.

Afternoon temperatures Saturday are expected to climb into the 50s over the state and to the low 60s in the southeast. Clouds will thicken over western Ohio Saturday and over the eastern counties Saturday night. Showers will spread in from the west Sunday.

Temperatures are expected to remain above freezing Saturday night with lows in the southern sections in the 40s.

On Sunday high temperatures in the 60s and upper 50s are likely

Friday night the skies were mostly clear over Ohio and the temperatures dipped into the 20s over a large part of the state. Readings at dawn ranged from 20 degrees at Youngstown to 36 at Cincinnati.

Weather

Mostly sunny but with increasing cloudiness and warmer Saturday, highs in the mid and upper 50s. Cloudy Saturday night and Sunday with showers likely Sunday. Lows Saturday night in the low and mid 40s. Easterly winds 6 to 12 miles per hour Saturday becoming southeasterly 10 to 18 miles per hour Saturday night.

Watergate secrets may surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — The six Watergate conspirators still awaiting sentencing are under new pressure to tell what they know about the bugging of Democratic party headquarters and other political espionage.

James W. McCord Jr., former security chief of President Nixon's re-election committee, said he will disclose new facts to the trial judge next week in hopes for a lighter sentence.

McCord charged there was perjury in the trial where he was convicted with G. Gordon Liddy, a top Nixon campaign official, and political pressure was brought on the defendants "to plead guilty and remain silent."

Liddy was sentenced Friday by Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to a prison term of 6 to 20 years. McCord's sentencing was delayed for one week. The final sentence for the others will be imposed after three months in which they can testify before a grand jury and Senate investigators.

"I recommend your full cooperation with the grand jury and the Senate Select Committee," Sirica told the five defendants who pleaded guilty at the start of the Watergate trial.

"You must understand that I hold out no promises or hopes of any kind to you in this matter, but I do say that should you decide to speak freely, I would have to weigh that factor in appraising what sentence will be finally imposed in each case."

The five are E. Howard Hunt, a former CIA agent and White House consultant; Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez. Hunt lives in the Washington area, the others are from Miami.

"None of you have been willing to give the government or other appropriate authorities any substantial help in trying this case or in investigating the activities which were the subject of this case," the judge said.

Sirica accepted McCord's offer to talk privately, made in a letter he hand-delivered Monday, but on the basis he will be free to make it public. The statement will be taken in closed court sometime next week.

McCord was convicted on eight counts of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping and faces a possible maximum sentence of 60 years and a $60,000 fine. Liddy was convicted on all six counts he was charged with.

Hunt's six counts carry a maximum 50 years imprisonment and $40,000. The others, guilty of seven counts, could be sentenced to a maximum 55 years and $50,000.

All except McCord, who is free on $100,000 surety bond, are being held in the District of Columbia jail—available to the grand jury which continues its investigation next week.

Late harvest causes change in need for spring tillage

COLUMBUS — As the 1973 planting season approaches, commercial farmers in Ohio may find that the tillage needed prior to planting is considerably different than it has been for past years. The late harvest in 1972 and 1973 resulted in little fall tillage, although some farmers tilled part of their soil during the winter.

According to Samuel W. Bone, Extension agronomist at the Ohio State University, producers need to consider two things as they select their tillage systems for the 1973 planting season. The first is soil tillage as it affects yields, or crop response, and the time required for tillage and planting. The second is the environmental effect of the tillage.

On some soils, tillage prior to planting may leave bare soil surfaces exposed throughout the growing season. As a result, if the infiltration rate of this soil is not adequate for the rainfall to move into the soil, erosion in the form of soil movement may occur.

Date of planting greatly affects yield for both corn and soybeans. Delay in planting past the optimum date will seriously reduce the potential yield of the crop. Therefore, the tillage system selected must be one that allows planting the crop at the proper time.

Those soils throughout the state that have drainage problems and are fine-textured will require some tillage prior to planting, if corn is to be grown. This normally will consist of plowing during the fall or winter, followed by some preparation prior to planting in the spring.

For those soils that are fine-textured and poorly drained, the option to plow should be continued through March. Plowing later than the end of March may result in plowing at undesirable moisture contents and cause problems in seedbed preparations and late planting.

During April, the specialist explains, the tillage option should be one that tills the soil only to a depth that is dry enough to be worked prior to planting. This decreased tillage may not work as well with a conventional planter as it will with no-tillage equipment. There may be residue on the surface through which the planter must cut. Some additional tillage in the row where the seed is to be placed is also desirable. Conventional planters will not do this satisfactorily; however, no-tillage equipment will.

Light-colored, medium-textured soils that have good drainage will respond to decreased tillage for corn production. On these soils, the best water control management throughout the growing season is adequate surface cover of at least 80 per cent or residue. This residue can be from sod or other previous crops. If drainage — either natural or improved — is adequate on light-colored, medium-textured soils, tillage prior to planting is unnecessary.

On fields that contain both dark-and light-colored soils, some tillage is desirable on the dark soils prior to planting; however, the light soils can be planted satisfactorily with no-tillage. On such fields, a satisfactory method is to chisel to plow depth prior to planting. This will provide enough tillage on the dark-colored soil and leave the residue near the surface on the light-colored soil. It will also provide coarseness of the soil surface to prevent crusting and allow for water movement in the soil. Following chiseling, Bone suggests, it is extremely important to use a planter that does some tillage in the row to make sure adequate seed-soil contact takes place at planting.

At present, no herbicides are available that will permit decreased tillage and still give effective weed control for soybean production. Still, Bone states, the future looks bright, and he expects such herbicides to be made available in a year or two. Double cropping with soybeans — such as soybeans after small grain — will be practical with no-tillage planting when herbicides control vegetation and permit satisfactory yields after wheat is harvested in late June or early July.

PCA loans $1 billion

Production Credit Associations (PCAs) in the Fourth Farm Credit District reached $1 billion in loans outstanding to farmers on March 12. By reaching the one-billion dollar mark, PCAs in Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio have set a national achievement record. Cumulatively they rank as national volume leaders in the extension of short and intermediate-term credit to farmers. As part of the nation-wide Farm Credit System, Fourth District PCAs make loans to farmers and part-time farmers for such needs as equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, educational purposes and much more.

The funds loaned by Production Credit Associations are obtained on the investment markets of the nation. The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville (FICB) is responsible for procuring these funds needed by PCAs.

The bank works with a New York-based fiscal agent to corordinate the sale of bonds on the open money market.

E. Glenn Sanderfur, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville, made the "billion dollar announcement" at a PCA Director-Manager Conference.

Stored grain should be checked

COLUMBUS — As spring approaches and temperatures begin to rise, better have a look at grain in your storage bins. This is a critical period for stored grain if it has undergone much "moisture migration" during autumn or early winter.

Moisture migration is the gradual movement of part of the moisture in grain into one location in the grain mass, according to Floyd L. Herum, agricultural engineer at the Ohio State University. The moisture content of grain throughout much of the bin may drop by one half per cent. This moisture collects in one location, usually the upper surface at the center of the bin, raising the moisture content of that grain to 25 per cent or more.

"Since the moisture accumulates at the surface, it's easy to check. If you can walk on the grain without sinking in, or if it's becoming discolored or has the distinctive smell of spoiling grain, there is a moisture problem," the engineer points out. If the grain was dry when stored, accumulation must have been caused by moisture migration, assuming no water or snow leaked in from the outside.

Moisture migration is caused in the fall when outside temperatures are lower than the grain temperature. Air in grain near the bin wall is cooler, and heavier, than at the center. As this cool air moves slowly downward near the walls and up the center, it comes in contact with the cold grain at the top of the bin. At this point some of its moisture condenses on the grain.

If this condensation occurs for several months, a wet spot may develop and spoil the layer of grain at the middle of the top surface. Although this spoilage is not likely to occur in bins with less than a 3,000 bushel capacity, the seriousness of moisture migration increases as bins get larger, especially as grain gets deeper. Large grain elevators customarily use aeration equipment to control moisture.

Very little migration is occuring now because the grain and outside temperatures should be about the same. But, if much moisture migration has occurred, spoiling grain may be found now and serious trouble can be expected as spring approaches and the grain begins to warm up, says Herum.

If a wet spot is found in a bin, action should be taken right away. The grain can be turned, mixed together if not spoiled badly, or removed and fed or disposed of. If the grain is wet but not spoiled, more time can be taken but the same choices will have to be made within a few weeks.

Moisture migration can occur even in grain adquately dried when stored, according to Herum. "We have observed migration problems in shelled corn drier than 12 per cent." Factors such as initial grain temperature, bin size and shape appear to have greater influence.

If you have persistant moisture migration year after year, you might consider installation of aeration equipment similar to the type used by large grain elevators and terminals. Aeration keeps grain temperatures close to those outside and counteracts the warm air currents carrying the moisture.

Herum recommends a quick check on each bin every two or three weeks from fall to spring. Migration problems aren't too difficult to handle once they are found, but putting them off can prove to be very costly, he points out.

Mold is found in stored corn

By A.J. BAXTER
Area Extension Agronomist

When did you take the last look at your 1972 corn crop? Was it back in January when you finished picking or shelling the crop? If so, you may have some problems which you hadn't expected.

I have checked several large ear corn cribs recently, and find they are still carrying 23 to 25 per cent moisture and are starting to go out of condition. The high grain moisture, along with the unseasonably high temperatures of early March, were causing the corn to mold.

The same thing can happen in shelled corn bins if it is not managed properly. Moisture migration can take place in shelled corn with changes in outside temperature, and cause pockets of mold to develop.

If you haven't looked lately, right now would be a good time to check that corn you have in storage.

Hog prices increase

Hog prices have climbed higher than anyone expected six months ago. Now farmere and others interested in the hog business are asking about the causes of the record prices, and about the next cyclical downswing of prices.

There are, of course, several reasons for the high prices of hogs. The foremost one is that marketings of hogs have been on a decreasing trend for nearly two years. Furthermore, this is likely to be the sixth consecutive quarter in which hog slaughter has been less than one year earlier. Recent slaughter levels were around 15 per cent lower than those of two years ago.

Referendum on egg marketing slated

From April 17 through April 19th, egg farmers throughout Ohio will be voting on a referendum to decide whether Ohio will have an Egg Marketing Program. Voting will be done in County Extension offices April 17, 18, 19.

The objectives of the proposed program are:

1. To promote Ohio egg industry and improve the image and desirability of eggs and egg products by the ultimate consumer through consumer education.

2. To promote the sale of all eggs and egg products through various accepted organizations and to supplement the national program with a state program.

3. To promote the use of all eggs by the distribution of all consumer information material to the homemaker and others.

4. To develop and improve distribution and marketing of eggs, development of new products and the expansion of existing markets.

Farmers with 3,000 birds or less are exempt from the program.

To defray the cost of a marketing program throughout Ohio a deduction of one cent a case of eggs sold for human consumption is proposed. Estimated revenues should be about $60,000 a year.

A nine-member "operating committee" nominated by producers and appointed by the Director of Agriculture will administer the program.

Copies of the official ballot and all other pertinent data regarding the referendum and the proposed marketing program will be in the hands of county agents by April 5.

FHA receives $170 million for farm operating loans

An additional apportionment of $170 million has been released nationally to the Farmers Home Administration for farm operating loans, Lester M. Stone, FHA state director announced. These additional funds were made available in order to meet the increased demand for farm operating loans as a result of the curtailment of the emergency loan program.

Stone said Ohio received an additional $5 million from this apportionment. That brings the total operating loan funds available to Ohio farmers this fiscal year to $8.5 million. Major consideration was given to those states such as Ohio that had counties requesting emergency loan designation.

Director Stone stated that operating loans may be made to eligible family farmers unable to meet their credit needs through private lenders. These loans may be used for the purchase of livestock, machinery, seed, feed, fertilizer, and other necessary operating expenses. The present interest rate is 5⅞ per cent. The repayment of these loans is set up based on the purpose of the loan and the farm income.

Stone suggested that many eligible family farmers adversely effected by weather conditions over the past months may need a FHA operating loan in order to put out this year's crop.

FHA also makes farm ownership loans to eligible family farmers to buy, improve, or enlarge farms, refinance debts, or to finance a nonfarm enterprise to supplement farm income.

Director Stone stated that a loan application and further information may be received at the local county FHA office or by writing: Farmers Home Administration, 121 E. State St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Charolais Classic set in Columbus

Columbus will become the Charolais capital of the world June 8 and 9 when the Ohio State Charolais Association stages the 6th North American Charolais Classic, according to James Gastineau, 1973 NACC chairman.

Highlighting the classic will be the Multi-Million Dollar Bull-O-Vard where 24 of the nation's best Charolais bulls are exhibted by the top Charolais Breeders in the United States.

The annual show will be held Friday afternoon, June 8, at the Cooper Arena at the Ohio State Fairgrounds with approximately 85 females going to the ring. Lloyd Householder, OSCA president and show chairman, reports that the 39 show entries to date indicate keen competition.

Secret voting in national elections became federal law in 1875.

Opinion And Comment

Lost . . . hubcaps and tempers!

We're reaching the peak of the shake-rattle-and-roll season in Washington C.H.

Our city has never been notable for the quality of its railroad crossings, and the freezes and thaws of spring aggravate a situation which is never a matter of pride or comfort.

Actually, the crossings have become so bad that in some cases it is difficult for pedestrians, let alone drivers, to navigate them.

City Manager Dan Wolford points out that letters have been sent to the B&O, the DT&I and the Penn Central asking their cooperation in improving these pot-holed, spike-protruding axle traps. As usual, responses are slow in forthcoming.

This is unfortunate indirectly as well as directly, for certainly the railroads were never in more need of good public relations.

The city administration has been watching with interest the progress of legislation introduced in the Ohio General Assembly calling for some type of fund which would be of assistance to municipalities seeking crossing repairs as well as signalization. Presumably, the railroads themselves would augment state and local contributions.

This suggestion seems to offer relief in the indefinite future, but Washington C.H. can't wait. Dealers in used auto parts could line their pockets if they would station representatives at almost any crossing in the city — just to collect the miscellaneous equipment jolted loose.

Bruce appointment to China hailed

WASHINGTON — In an era when ambassadorial posts go on the auction block to the highest bidder the appointment of David K. E. Bruce to be chief of the American mission in Peking is evidence that quality and ability still count. President Nixon could not have made a better choice for this newest phase of the opening to a world so long closed.

The Chinese will take the Bruce appointment as the tribute that it is to their place in shaping the last decades of the 20th Century. While he will be chief of delegation rather than ambassador, this will be of small moment in the close relationship he is sure to establish with Premier Chou En-Lai, whose fluent French will mean a common working language with Bruce.

For all his years abroad in the highest reaches of diplomacy in Paris, Bonn and London and the tributes that have come to him, one important attribute has been unmistakable. He is an American with no question of identity. This is not in any aggressive sense of the American abroad in an earlier day determined to prove his Americanism.

One of the most cultivated of men in history, literature, the arts, there is nothing of the pseudo-sophisticate about the man who at 75 has now been called back to service. Part of his Americanism is his sense of humor, his chuckling low-keyed laughter. The pompous and the pretentious are put in their place by this urbane gentleman who might have pursued a career as a philosopher if he had not entered the diplomatic service nearly 50 years ago.

A SMALL IRONY in his appointment is the place that he and his beautiful wife, Evangeline, hold in what has been scornfully called the limousine liberal set of Georgetown. In the handsome drawing room of their Georgetown house they have assembled the widest range of guests from government, the diplomatic corps, writers and intellectuals. No arbitrary canon, but the broad spectrum of their interests has set the tone.

It is sometimes said that in the era of instant telephonic contact between heads of state an ambassador makes no difference. Bruce's career, which came to an end with his resignation as ambassador to Britain in 1969, refutes that easy generalization. He has represented his country with distinction and with discreet counsel to officials in the capitals where he has served.

His appointment should hearten the professional career service in the Department of State demoralized by the appointment of so many big campaign check writers. While there are few Bruces, many able career men are resigning because the top posts are being handed out as political rewards.

ANOTHER ambassadorship at least as important as Peking is presently unfilled. Jacob D. Beam, an able career officer who was ambassador to Moscow for four years, has just resigned. In view of the obstacles in the way of the trade agreement signed last year and the long string of other agreements being implemented, Moscow is more vital than ever before to the Nixon-Kissinger generation of peace.

One proposal is for a leading American businessman who would hold the ambassadorship for a year or so and then give way to a career officer. A lot can be said for this. There are instances where the outsider with special capabilities should have precedence over a career appointment. But this does not cover the blanketing in of so-called ambassadors merely on the criterion of big money. We have seen minor disasters aplenty in this category.

FOLLOWING the devastation wreaked by Joe McCarthy in the '50s with the blasting of virtually all the State Department's China specialists, a new generation of Sinologists has come up.

Two, Alfred le S. Jenkins and John Holdridge, will head the backup team for Bruce in Peking. They speak Chinese fluently and Holdridge, on Henry Kissinger's staff, has made all the trips to China that opened the way to the liaison mission.

At about the same time that Bruce goes to Peking in early May the Chinese will send a representative with ambassadorial rank to Washington to head the liaison here. With ordinary luck these should further the opening to the East that has been one of the achievements of the Nixon Administration.

The United States in 1950, after the overthrow of Chiang Kai-shek, decided to pretend that mainland China did not exist. We have seen an extraordinary transition to reality.

TV gold under city streets?

Has cable TV come along just too late to save New York's Mayor John Lindsay?

In a recent swansong utterance, Handsome John warned city governments everywhere against the pretensions of the Federal Communications Commission to seize the "urban oil wells," or the "gold," represented by coaxial cable TV channels under the city streets. In two frustrated terms, Lindsay never did manage to get his hands on enough oil or gold to carry out the welfare missions that are so dear to every municipal liberal's heart.

Lindsay's feeling is that the cities should do their own cable TV franchising without Washington interference. But Dean Burch, the chairman of the FCC, considers that City Hall politicians, seeking new resources of revenue, might tend to be altogether too hoggish in exacting franchise fees. The business of laying TV is "capital intensive," and Burch thinks that anything over a 5 per cent city tax on gross cable income would tend to choke the growth of a new and promising industry.

Burch could be right in his fears, but if the Nixon government really means business about restoring responsibility to the local communities why shouldn't they be permitted to solve their own problems by trial and error?

BE THAT as it may, some cities already are taking Lindsay at his word that there is gold in the coaxial cable. After all, it can put 30 and more channels into a single conduit, which represents a lot of communication mileage.

Newark, N. J., for instance, is one community that is hungry to be in on a TV revolution. The city fathers of Newark had a deal with the big Teleprompter company on cable TV installations. There was some dissatisfaction with the original terms, but ex-Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania, who is now the chief executive officer of Teleprompter, has managed to renegotiate the whole business with Mayor Kenneth Gibson, which might lead one to believe that politicians know how to talk to each other where a businessman might muff it.

The deal for Newark, which still has to go through final readings, gives the city a good break on several matters, including an educational channel, a public-access channel complete with a media center that will train individuals and groups to use it, and a government - communications channel that will help firemen, police and other city agencies. Newark is asking 5 per cent of the gross fees paid for cable TV plug-ins, with 2 per cent going to public access — or "pure democracy" — support.

Cable TV today has 7,000,000 subscribers. By 1980 it could have 30,000,000, hitting half of all the TV homes in the U. S. With its clear vision, it has all sorts of promise, not the least of which is the possibility that it will enable minority groups everywhere to have their say to as many people as may care to listen to them. I have been telling journalism students to get ready for the day when every little community will have room for its local news commentator.

Seeking to coin their own "oil wells," Boulder, Colo., Memphis and Knoxville in Tennessee, Birmingham, Ala., and Louisville, Ky. are all entertaining cable TV bids. Louisville and Birmingham each has 13 applicants.

THE WILDER DREAMS of the cable TV proponents involve cross-country hookups utilizing satellites. There is currently a satellite in Canada. Combined with pay-TV (which operates on fees for individual programs), the use of satellites could bring a vast variety of programs to people 3,000 miles apart. The inevitable restrictionists have already reared their ugly heads, seeking to prevent the widest sort of capitalization of cable TV promise.

In Connecticut, a state representative is drafting legislation that would prohibit cable TV operators from charging additional fees for special programming. For 20 years Zenith Radio has been hamstrung by the negativists in its efforts to provide pay-TV over the existing airwave spectrum.

This has been the grossest sort of imposition in a free enterprise country, and it would be a shame to see the same error repeated as cable TV drives its bargains with cities to get its cables laid and its 30-channel choices into thousands of homes.

Piles of leaves can be fed into a shredder — also capable of mulching up sticks as well as straying rake handles and garden gloves.

"SURE, MISTER, I UNDERSTAND YOU WANT TO REPORT A HOLDUP. THEY ALL DO."

Our envoy to China

The choice of David K. E. Bruce to head the United States liaison office when it opens in Peking in a wise one on several counts. Above all he is, as the President described him, "a man of great stature" in the foreign service. That is of particular importance in this sensitive post.

Bruce has had long experience, and enjoys a well deserved reputation for skill in diplomacy. The fact that he is a Democrat lends a desirable aura of bipartisanship to the appointment. Even his rather advanced age of 75, which might be against him under different circumstances, should prove to be an advantage in a country whose leading public figures are of his generation.

One question of some consequence may be raised about the appointment. Though Bruce has served under five presidents, his orientation has been toward Europe rather than Asia. An old China hand might prove more adept at dealing with the Chinese, all the more so since they have in large measure been cut off from the international community for so many years.

This should not be a serious drawback, however. Two of our government's leading experts on China will be on hand to advise Bruce as his deputies. This is a diplomatic team which promises to give an excellent account of itself as the United States and China feel their ways toward a better relationsip.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The two letters in your newspaper regarding the departure of NCR have been most interesting.

However, neither one mentioned our No. 1 business in Fayette County which is still continuing quite successfully without NCR — FARMING.

How about all the other fine industries that have located in Washington C. H., Jeffersonville, etc., and are quite contented to remain? In addition these companies, in many instances, carry their local address on their products, which is big for our area.

As an owner of numerous rentals and farms in Fayette County, we had just as big a demand for rentals since NCR left as when they were operating there.

The backbone of Fayette County is, as always, agriculture, plus its many fine small store owners and our numerous industries who work together to make Fayette County, Ohio — The Best.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: IF WE DESIRE RESPECT FOR THE LAW, WE MUST MAKE THE LAW RESPECTABLE.— LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(© 1973 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Absent hubby's 'law' appealed

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can settle an argument between my husband and me. We've been married for three years and it's the second marriage for both of us.

We have no children to tie us down. Hubby informed me that he was going on a fourday skiing weekend with "the boys." He also laid the law down as to what I may and may not do while he is gone.

1. I may NOT, under any circumstances, get on a plane and go anywhere.

2. I must be home every evening to receive his phone calls. (He says I can't call HIM because he's not sure exactly where this lodge is, and it's diffucult to reach.)

Why should I sit home for four days twiddling my thumbs while he is off somewhere skiing with "the boys?" It's not as though we were 16 when we got married. We're both over 35 and he's had plenty of time to have fun with his friends.

This is going to end in a showdown to see just how obedient and well-trained he's got me. How should I handle this!

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Tell hubby that you aren't making any promises, but if you should decide to go somewhere you'll be happy to call HIM if he lets you know where he can be reached. And if he calls and you aren't home he shouldn't think you dropped dead because there is still plenty of life in you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his partner hired a very pretty young girl to work in their office. She was there for only 60 days when they gave her a clock-radio for her birthday. Thirty days later they gave her $100 for Christmas.

Don't you think they went overboard for the length of time she was there?

RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: Maybe she put in overtime.

DEAR ABBY: I read the item written by a California physician in which he put down (in diary form) the thoughts of a woman who had taken her elderly father into her home to live with her. The problems she had with him are well-known to all who have shared their home with an eiderly parent.

This doctor (a man) wrote a most compelling piece on why a WOMAN should "repay" her senile father's love and care by looking after him in his declining years.

Note, please, that the MAN doesn't have to do anything. He only argues eloquently why his wife, or sister, or mother should do it. The man isn't around the house all day to "diaper" Daddy, decipher his babbling, clean up his messes and endure the ordeal. But he suggests that a properly grateful and respectful WOMAN should. Big deal!

I am not a women's libber. I am a MAN. But I just wanted to point out something you might have missed.

ROBERT L.

DEAR MR. L.: You're right. I missed it. You have a point. And a good one. Thank you for writing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING IN DENVER": If a man will cheat WITH you, he will probably cheat ON you. And after years of practice, he should know all the tricks.

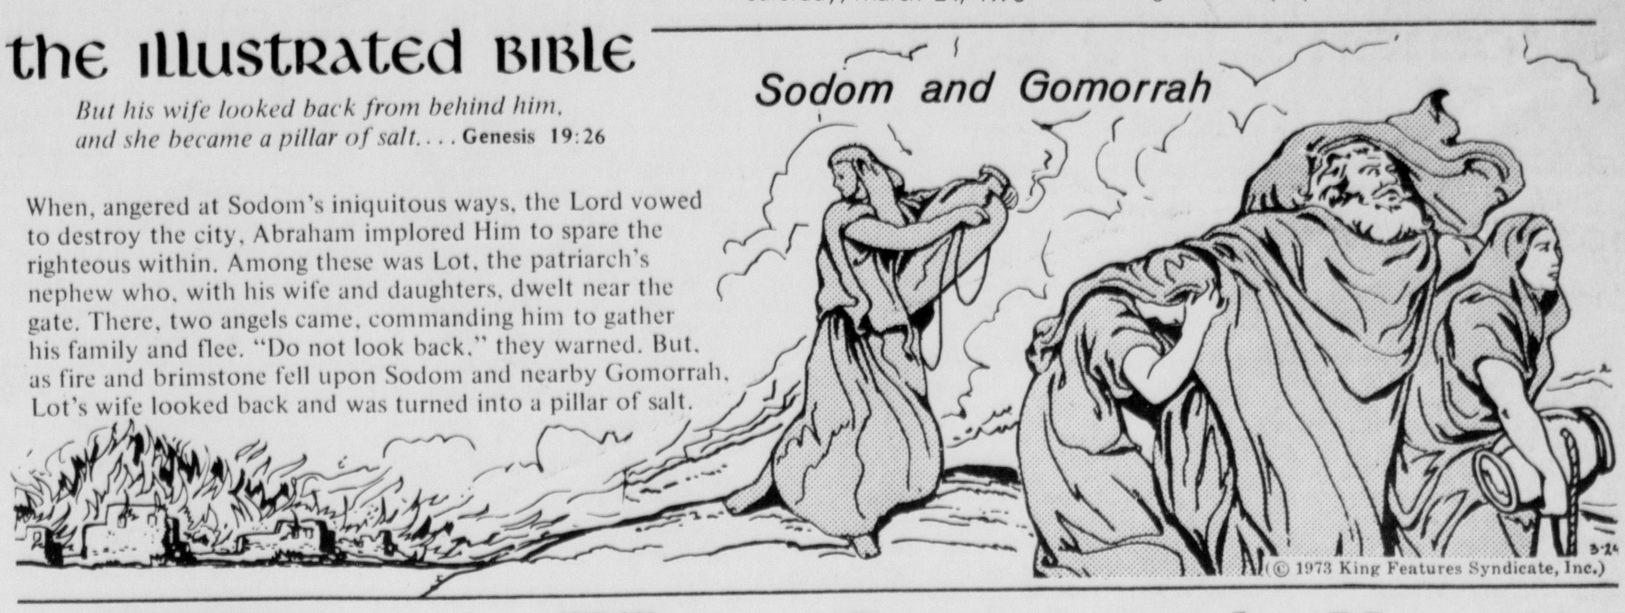
the ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt. . . . Genesis 19:26

When, angered at Sodom's iniquitous ways, the Lord vowed to destroy the city, Abraham implored Him to spare the righteous within. Among these was Lot, the patriarch's nephew who, with his wife and daughters, dwelt near the gate. There, two angels came, commanding him to gather his family and flee. "Do not look back," they warned. But, as fire and brimstone fell upon Sodom and nearby Gomorrah, Lot's wife looked back and was turned into a pillar of salt.



'Sermon on the Mount' slated at Grace Church

FRANK M. ROUGHTON

A dramatic production of "The Sermon on the Mount" will be presented Thursday night in Grace United Methodist Church by the Rev. Frank M. Roughton following a potluck supper for families and friends of the church. This is one of a series of Lenten services being held at Grace Church.

The supper will be at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall, and the portrayal of Jesus of Nazareth by the Rev. Mr. Roughton will be presented about 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary.

The drama has been widely acclaimed in the United States, Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

Mr. Roughton majored in drama and speech in college, studied radio and television in Cincinnati and the drama in New York. He received his divinity degree from Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and a master of fine arts degree in drama from the University of Georgia.

He has traveled the United State and Canada for three years playing the part of Caiaphas, the high priest, in an American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play.

Award slated for religious motion picture

NEW YORK (AP) — When the nation's major religious organizations, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, pick their choice movie fare, it usually is not overtly religious.

In fact, they generally find that the Hollywood films intended to be explicitly religious are actually less so, basically, that some others.

"What we're looking for are films that from the standpoint of the Judeo-Christian perspective, illuminate the human condition," says the Rev. Dr. William Fore, head of an interdenominational film commission.

"It is through man's response to other men that we see God's action in life."

By such criteria, the three branches of faith join next week in making their 1972 Interreligious Film Awards to two motion pictures, "The Emigrants," a story of a family newly come to the United States, and "Sounder," a portrayal of a poor black youngster's achievement of dignity through his parent's love.

As generally has been the case with previous films singled out by the religious groups as the year's best, neither of those honored this time are specifically religious.

"Our primary concern is not for consciously religious films, but for those that bring out authentic human values," says Richard Hirsch, associate director of the Film and Broadcasting Division of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

"From a religious viewpoint, however, one can see in them larger values that are essentially spiritual."

In regard to the movie industry's efforts at ostensibly religious movies, Hirsch said they ordinarily distort the point.

"The core of the problem is that they try to visualize profound qualities that are not easily visualized, and the effect usually ends up in the disaster area," Hirsch says.

Carter Family to appear at McNair Church

The Carter Family, a local vocal group, will present a program of gospel music Sunday evening in McNair Presbyterian Church, Lewis and Rawlings Sts.

The program, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., is sponsored by the church Sanctuary Choir. The group is composed of Charles Carter, his sons, Eddie and Phil, and daughter, Mary Jane.

There will be an interlude of Scripture reading, prayer and a free will offering for the Carter Family.

Following the service, refreshments will be served in the social room by the choir. Garrell B. Leasure is the choir director and organist.

Revival scheduled at Church of God

A revival will open Monday at the Church of God, 505 Rose Ave., and continue through the following Saturday, March 31 with Fred Wilson, of Kettering, as the evangelist. All services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Special music will be provided each night by both members of the congregation and visiting musicians.

The Rev. David L. Henson is the church pastor.

Something to think about

BY: NED KINZER

An unselfish person is one to be admired and envied, for a truly unselfish person cares little for his own needs and is always ready to do for, and give to his fellow man.

Because there are so few of these generous, sincere human beings who are not following the crowd so to speak, by grabbing whatever they can get for themselves, but instead are holding on to the belief that it is better to give than to receive should be admired, and envied by those who do not possess the trait of unselfishness but who wish that they did for they see what success, admiration, and friendships it brings.

Hair styles match hats

HAIRDOS FOR HATS — Coordination of new hairdos and hats for spring has created a do-it-yourself trend that sends fashion right to the top of your head. Choosing the right hat silhouette for yourself and your hairdo and use a setting lotion to create a new you. The close cropped shag cut, top left, is carefree for spring, good for all occasions and is especially chic when coupled with a giant brim natural straw with a tipple that takes a flirtatious dip at the front, top right. For a mood of nostalgia, the side-part, off-the-face page boy style is matched with a floppy brim cotton hat turned up in front, center, to give a face framing accent. A constant fashion favorite, bottom left, is the softly cascading center part comb out. The unstudied look of loose curls at the shoulder gain added charm with the romantic wide brim straw hat touched with flowers, bottom right.

Furs have a sportswear look

Bomb found in post office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A package "flashed" as it sat on a loading dock at the main Columbus post office Friday night, and firemen called to the scene found it contained a bomb.

A bomb detail spokesman said there apparently had been a partial explosion, which ripped a hole in the package, but the device still was active when dismantled.

The U.S. Treasury Department is investigating the incident. It was not disclosed what type of explosive the package contained or who it was addressed to.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati police are waiting for signed complaints to determine how extensive losses are from the police property room after $299 turned up missing.

An audit revealed the money has been missing since January.

Rights debate coming up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House's debate next Wednesday on the women's equal rights amendment will be carried by National Public Radio, a 150-station network that covers every state, according to Rep. Michale Stinziano, D-30 Columbus.

Stinziano said NPR's interest in the vote here "makes it clear that passage in Ohio is crucial" to the fate of the proposal.

Thirty states have ratified the constitutional change, which prohibits discrimination because of sex. A total of 38 states must approve it.

Meanwhile, the Ohio AFL-CIO came out Friday against ratification of the amendment. The big labor organization said in its newsletter it supported equality for women but contended the ERA "could destroy more rights than it creates."

Top animals selected at Dorset Show

A fall-born yearling ram shown by Oren A. Wright & Son of Greenwood, Ind., and a fall-born yealing ewe shown by Warren C. Squires of Chesterville won championship honors Friday in the 13th annual Ohio Dorset Show held on the Fayette County Fairground.

The best 100 animals in the show were to be sold Saturday beginning at noon.

Reserve championships in the show went to a ram shown by Squires, and a ewe exhibited by Wright.

Other top animals in the show were a spring-born yearling ram shown by C. Curtis Mast of Bland, Va., and a ewe lamb shown by Squires.

The junior contest was scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday and was open to qualified 4-H and FFA members.

A lamb smorgasbord was served Friday evening in the Mahan Building.

Burglary case defendant bound to grand jury

Michael W. Davis, 21, Rt. 5, charged with burglary in connection with entry into a Bloomingburg garage, pleaded innocent to the charge in when arraigned Municipal Court Friday and was ordered bound over to the grand jury.

Davis and five Bloomingburg juveniles were charged with the March 16 burglary of Noble's Garage in which several jacks, tools and automotive supplies were stolen. Sheriff's deputies said they recovered the stolen goods from Davis's car when he was stopped later for a traffic violation.

Davis was also fined $200 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and handed a 45-day license suspension for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

He is also charged with contributing to the delinquency of the five juveniles who allegedly accompanied him at the time.

He currently is lodged in the county jail in lieu of bond.

Symposiarchs hear Haigler

Bob Haigler, cattle farmer and after-dinner speaker, poked fun at the prohibitions imposed on certain insecticides, pesticides and livestock feed additives by the government in an informal talk at the Symposiarch meeting Thursday following dinner in the Country Club.

His dry wit took much of the edge off some of his caustic remarks about the government taboos aimed at pollution control. He said if trend to ban certain fertilizers, herbicides, insecticides and additives in livestock feed continues, food production will be seriously reduced and "a lot of people will go hungry."

President Richard R. Willis conducted the meeting at which Colin P. Campbell, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, Wittenburg University, and son of the late Colin C. Campbell, a past national president of the Order of Symposiarchs, was inducted into membership by Haigler.

Lee Lynch, a graduate of the University of West Virginia, was the guest of George Arnold. Hosts for the dinner were Willard H. Perrill, William Hendren and Jerry Sheppard.

Juke box owner shot in holdup

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sol Silverstein, 38, of Cleveland was in guarded condition today at Mt. Sinai Hospital after being shot in the abdomen and robbed as he unloaded money from a juke box he owns.

Police said Silverstein, owner of Excel Phonograph Co., was removing coins Friday from a box on his machine at a bar when he was shot.

JAMES GREENWOOD

Revival opens Sunday at Jeff

JEFFERSONVILLE — "Great Days of Growth in God's Tomorrow" is the theme of a revival which opens Sunday and will continue through Saturday, March 31, in the Church of Christ here.

The Rev. James Greenwood, director of development for the Christian Restoration Association, of Cincinnati, will be the evangelist. The Rev. Conrad Bower, pastor of the church, said Mr. Greenwood has had wide experience in the Christian ministry, and serving churches in the Columbus area before going to Cincinnati.

Guest song evangelists include the Rev. Don Baker, pastor of the First Christian Church of Washington C.H.; Frank Creamer, of the South Side Church of Christ in Washington C.H.; Mrs. Rita McKay, formerly of the Greenfield Church of Christ, and James Beard, of the Bowersville Church of Christ. Singing groups, which will provide special music, include the Christianaires, of Jeffersonville, and the Revolutioners, of South Solon. All services will begin at 7:30 p.m. after the special music program starting at 7:15 p.m.

A nursery will take care of the children while the parents attend the services. A light fellowship supper is planned for 6 p.m. Sunday before the revival opens.

Rhodes case investigation hits snag

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Commerce Director Dennis Shaul said Friday he still expects a former real estate commissioner to testify Wednesday in a probe of how former Gov. James A. Rhodes got a real estate brokers license.

Friday afternoon, another former commissioner failed to appear after being subpoenaed. Attorney William J. Lohr said his client John Pace was improperly subpoenaed for the hearing.

Lohr said Shaul had no authority to conduct a hearing. He added that the Real Estate Commission "does not have the authority to subpoena anybody to appear before anybody but itself."

Former commission member P. G. Graves, of Cincinnati, has been subpoenaed by the real estate commission to appear before Shaul Wednesday. Lohr also represents Graves.

Both Pace and Graves were members of the Real Estate Commission at the time Rhodes and several key aides were given either broker's or salesman licenses shortly before they left office in January 1971.

Paul Everson of Euclid, a member then and now, has also refused to testify. Shaul, last week, threatened to get a court order forcing him to do so. However, he has not testified.

Shaul said Pace and anyone else who refused to testify could be arrested. He indicated, however, that would not be done.

He was arrested early Thursday at a Salt Lake City hotel where he was employed as a dishwasher.

Country Club election scheduled for April 2

Three new trustees are to be elected for three-year terms, and officers and committee chairman will make reports at the annual membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 2, in the Country Club.

The terms of Bart Mahoney, this year's president, James Vess and Birch Rice expire this year. Their successors will be chosen from among six nominees, William Mount, Allen Willoughby, Richard Wintringham, Otis Hess, Richard Lewis and Mrs. Harry Thrailkill.

The new board will elect the officers and possibly consider plans for the future at a meeting within a week or 10 days.

A letter has been sent by the board of directors to the members, notifying them of the annual meeting and explaining that the annual dues have been increased because of the "rising costs in all phases of the club operation." The board's letter said "the easy way would have been just to make another assessment. However, your board feels that this method (increasing the dues) will enable it to continue for several years to come."

THE REVISED schedule of dues is: initiatory or entrance fee $125; family membership (for golf) $200; social membership only $75; and inactive membership $33. Members who take an inactive membership may become active again by paying the annual dues but not the $125 entrance fee.

Along with the notice of the increase in dues, the board gave this explanation for its action: "The last few years, the boards have not been able to live within their budget. A few increased expenses in the past few years: include property taxes up 50 per cent — insurance up 65 per cent — equipment maintenance up 100 per cent — wages have been upgraded and need to be revised again — clubhouse needs repairs — traps (on golf course) need sand — fence around the club in poor condition etc."

Truckers face fuel shortage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two trucking associations officials have told the Cleveland Plain Dealer that diesel fuel suppliers are beginning to cut back trucking companies allotments by as much as 25 per cent.

"We started getting complaints from our members late in December," said Washington's Martin Cromartie, a special assistant to the American Trucking Association, Inc. President, William Bresnahan.

"There were severe shortages of fuel in the Chicago area and the northern tier of Midwest states, including Wisconsin and Minnesota," he said, adding that some suppliers refused to bid on new contracts as old ones expired.

The Plain Dealer said some trucking executives in Ohio have estimated that they are paying 20 to 30 per cent more for diesel fuel than a year ago.

"But this shortage isn't local," said one executive. "There is a worldwide shortage of crude oil. The oil companies have been warning us about it for three years."

Other executives said allocations are smaller than the demand.

2 scientists predicting earthquake

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Two government scientists have forecast the strength, exact location and approximate time of an earthquake.

Dr. Robert Wesson and Dr. William Ellsworth of the National Center for Earthquake Research said Thursday they are predicting a moderate quake within "several months" near Hollister, Calif, about 100 miles southeast of San Francisco.

"If this prediction is fulfilled, it will be an important step toward more meaningful prediction, although a great deal more understanding needs to be gained about the generation of earthquakes," Wesson, 29, said.

"We've made a limited type of prediction in a place called Bear Valley," near Hollister, the U.S. Geological Survey scientist said.

The center's chief, Dr. Robert Wallace, said the predicted quake would occur a little over four miles deep, would be felt as a sharp jolt above ground, but would not cause damage.

Wesson said a quake never before had been forecast from only physical evidence. "We decided to stick our neck out," he said, "because the observed physical evidence was so outstanding and suggestive." The prediction is "unique" since it was formulated on the basis of physical events instead of statistics, Wesson said.

The weathered Cathedral of St. Michael, completed in 1848 in Siaka, Alaska, remained in use until destroyed by fire in 1966.

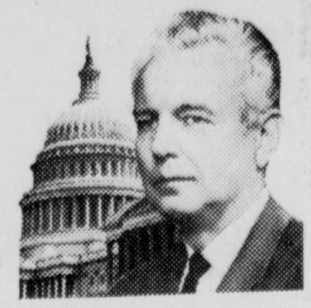
WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio



WASHINGTON — Arising out of the Vietnam peace settlement is the controversial question of reconstruction aid to North Vietnam.

While discussion of such aid is not particularly new and dates back as far as 1965 when a one billion dollar figure was quoted, the amount suggested now centers around 7½ billion dollars for all of Indochina, with roughly 2½ billion dollars earmarked for North Vietnam.

I am adamantly opposed to spending over our dwindling federal funds for this purpose. The American taxpayer simply cannot afford it. Furthermore, I fail to see where any such expenditures will purchase a firmer peace in Southeast Asia or lessen our involvement in the conflict.

Here in America, we are warring with inflation to the point that the President might possibly have to consider price controls on food and has already made drastic cuts in many domestic programs. Time and time again, the American taxpayer has invested literally billions of dollars into foreign aid and, time and time again, the returns in international goodwill and actual accomplishments have failed miserably or, at best, fallen far short of their intended purpose.

Indeed, there is every reason to believe that aid to North Vietnam would not be any different. In fact, the circumstances as they now stand indicate that U.S. reconstruction aid could complicate things considerably.

WHILE a cease-fire agreement has been reached on paper and while it is reasonable to assume that sporadic fighting could continue for some time, violations by the North Vietnamese appear to be intensifying. Recent intelligence reports reveal that heavy arms and munitions are once again being transported down the Ho Chi Minh Trail by the North Vietnamese.

One estimate is that the North Vietnamese have sent more than 400 armored vehicles, including tanks which are generally used as offensive weapons, into South Vietnam since the cease-fire. They are cropping up farther south than they have ever been at any other time.

Coupled with reports that Hanoi has more than 65,000 new troops in the pipeline or already inside South Vietnam, these facts certainly leave one to wonder, and rightly so, just where the billions of American reconstruction dollars would go: to a stronger peace or to another war?

SOME PROPONENTS of aid to North Vietnam argue that this money is owed to the country due to American bombings of Hanoi and to the fact that the U.S. has offered such assistance for former U.S. emeny countries in the past.

First of all, if North Vietnam is so utterly "devastated" and broke, where does it get the money to persist in stockpiling heavy weapons in the South? On the second point, it should be made clear that after World War II, both Germany and Japan surrendered unconditionally to the Allied forces after which they received substantial U.S. aid.

North Vietnam, however, denies its aggression toward South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia as well as its gross violations of international law, especially toward U.S. prisoners of war. North Vietnam has also maintained that U.S. aid would be considered just "reparations".

AND WHERE, might I ask, are the many nations who aided North Vietnam or profitted financially from the conflict: To date, there is little indication that any of these countries would be willing to supply assistance — if any at all — in the neighborhood of the billions of dollars considered by the United States.

At this time, negotiations on this very subject of reconstruction aid are taking place in Paris between the U.S. and North Vietnam, but the final determination on just what form, if any, this assistance will take hinges partly on congressional approval.

However, if the cease-fire violations and the military build up by the North Vietnamese in Southeast Asia persit, I do not see how the American public — which has already paid dearly for this war — could tolerate any such expenditure whatsoever.

City cleanup starts tiff

MILLERSPORT, Ohio (AP) — Concerned citizens of Millersport started out to do the state a favor and ended up embroiled in a controversy with the Department of Natural Resources, with Mayor Irvin Wilson claiming a state official threatened him with arrest.

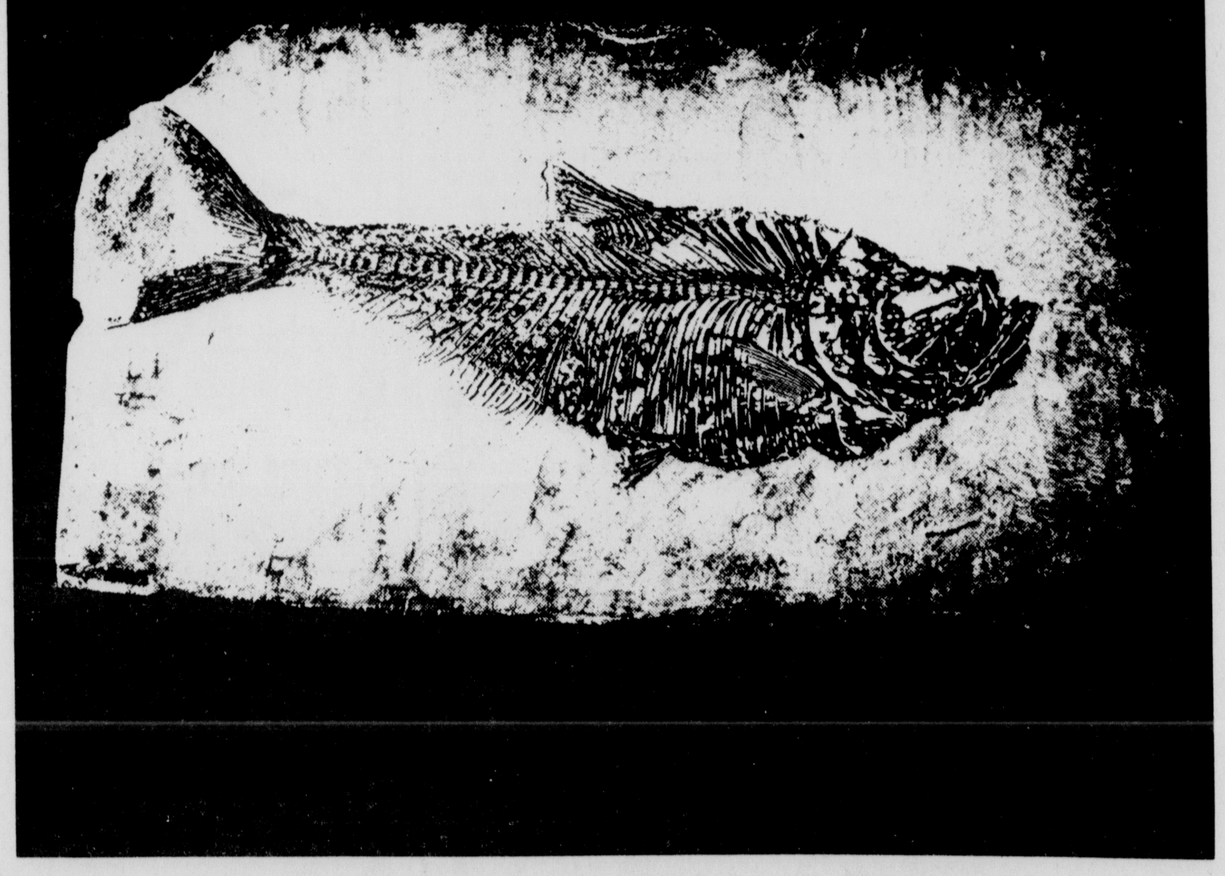
The dispute began when citizens turned out to clean up the banks of a state-owned canal. They said they cleared away several truck loads of litter and dead vegetation. They burned much of it.

State parks officials called Wilson in for a meeting and told him that cutting vegetation on state park land and open burning of waste require special permission which Wilson didn't have.

A department spokesman said Wilson asked what would happen if the cleanup proceeded without the necessary state approval and was told he could be subject to arrest.

"Citizen cleanups are very laudable," said spokesman Marv Katz. "But there are certain restrictions."

Could this be the only fish your grandchild ever sees?



By the end of this century, the waters of our world may be lifeless. Since the beginning of this century, contaminating wastes dumped into our lakes, rivers and streams have increased 600%. Fish are dying. And the water we drink doesn't taste quite the same.

We have a very few years to reverse this ugly trend. It's a job for people. For people in government and major industry. For independent businessmen, like us. For individuals, like you. It's a job for all of us, for all people who enjoy the water and realize how much it means to life.

It requires so little effort. Simply never throw trash in the water or anywhere near it. Report major cases of water pollution to authorities. Always set an example for others.

Water without fish, smelling and clogged with litter, is the only alternative. We think that your grandchildren, and ours, deserve better.

Ready eyes second prep title in row

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Pat Penn maintains his defending Ohio Class AA high school basketball tournament champion Columbus Ready squad has more at stake the second time around.

"We were really sort of awestruck last year," Penn said Friday night after the Silver Knights' depth and Jimmy Jones' 22 points ousted Bellefontaine 60-47 in the semifinals.

"This year our kids feel they have more to prove in defending that championship," Penn said.

Ready pits its 22-3 record against 18-7 Delphos St. John, the 1949 state Class B king, for the 1973 middle class championship tonight in Ohio State's St. John Arena.

St. John clipped Elyria Catholic 72-61 in the other Class AA semifinal.

Cincinnati Elder, 21-4, and Akron Central-Hower, 19-6, battled for their first state titles in Class AAA and Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South and Marion Pleasant, both 25-0, settled the Class A title earlier today.

Penn's No. 1 concern was the health of Jones, his 6-foot All-Ohio guard.

"Jimmy's been ill all week," said Penn, who rested his star junior nearly all of the third quarter. Then Jones rammed a basket support later in the period and was removed from the game for a while.

"That blow to the head didn't do too much to help him," Penn admitted, but said, "I'm pretty certain he'll be ready to play."

After Ready demolished his Chiefs with speed and a solid bench, Bellefontaine Coach Will Collins looked at the title showdown.

"I don't know who will win, but I'm certain it will be whichever team happens to be quicker in pressure situations," Collins said after the Chiefs bowed out with a 17-7 mark.

Unbeatens to clash for Class A crown

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The classic matchup of the 1973 Ohio state high school basketball tournament offered top-ranked Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South vs. No. 2 Marion Pleasant today for the Class A title.

The stakes were piled high for both 25-0 small school powers in the showdown that settled The Associated Press regular season struggle as well as the tournament winner.

Indian Valley South, which swept by Sebring 60-49 in the semifinals Friday, risked its 51-game winning streak and 1972 crown.

Marion Pleasant, a 63-53 semifinal winner over Mansfield St. Peter, could become the first team in any of Ohio's three classes to win the football and basketball crown in the same school year.

In the Class AAA title game at Ohio State's St. John Arena this morning, Cincinnati Elder, 21-4, and Akron Central-Hower, 19-6, both sought their first state championships.

Columbus Ready, 22-3, chases a second straight Class AA title against 18-7 Delphos St. John in the middle school championship contest tonight.

Charles Huggins, Indian Valley South's cautious coach, wasn't about to compare his 1972 champions with the team that made Sebring play the Rebels' deliberate style.

"I'll let you know more about that tomorrow," said Huggins. "Last year we won it. This year we still have something to prove."

Van Henry's 27 points and smooth handling of Indian Valley South's patient attack whipped Sebring, out with a 23-2 record.

McClain athletes ruled ineligible

GREENFIELD — The Ohio High School Athletic Association has ruled two Greenfield McClain athletes ineligible for spring sports on the basis of violating a rule governing competition in independent athletic events.

Buddy Kennedy, a member of Greenfield's track team, and Larry Crabtree, a third baseman on the McClain baseball squad, will not be eligible to participate this season after they played for a Greenfield independent basketball team in the Sinking Spring Invitational tournament last week, according to athletic director Fred Raike.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former Cincinnati Bengal quarterback Greg Cook, unheard from since shoulder problems forced his retirement three years ago, predicts a comeback and says "as far as I'm concerned I'm the No. 1 quarterback."

The brash blonde, who was Rookie of the Year in 1969, tossed down the challenge to Bengal quarterbacks Ken Anderson and Virgil Carter.

"They've got to beat me out," said Cook, the former University of Cincinnati star who was drafted No. 1 by the Bengals.

And if No. 12 does slip back into his uniform and make good his promise, he'll be throwing to a wealth of receiving talent.

Cincinnati's first three draft choices last January were receivers—and touted ones.

Olympic speedster Isaac Curtis of San Diego State heads the list of newcomers, followed by tight end Al Chandler of Oklahoma and Tim George of Carson-Newman.

Plus there's veteran Bob Trumpy, an All-Pro tight end.

Trumpy had one word for Cook's return: "fantastic."

The 26-year-old Cook completed 106 of 197 passes for 15 touchdowns in his only full season.

"Frankly, everyone feels he's going to be alright," said a team official Friday.

Coach Paul Brown said Cook has the ability "to move and inspire the team and to generate enthusiasm."

The 6-foot-4 Chillicothe, Ohio, native works out regularly and has been throwing the ball extremely well, according to reports.

Now living in Cincinnati, he'll face the major test at the Bengals' rookie camp in May.

Olga Korbut wins trophy, U.S. hearts

NEW YORK (AP) — Olga Korbut, the tiny Russian teenager who grew into the Woman Athlete of the Year at the 1972 Olympic Games, won a trophy and the hearts of the nation's largest city Friday night.

"It's like Saturday matinee at the movies," said an adult spectator in the youthful Madison Square Garden crowd of 19,964, a North American record for a gymnastics performance. Presentation of the Babe Didrickson Zaharias Trophy was the climax of the performance by the Russian women's gymnastics team. George Zaharias, a man-mountain of Greek sentiment several times Olga's size, presented her with the huge silver trophy.

Zaharias bent almost double leaning down to kiss the 89-pound Russian star on the cheek.

Olga, 17, clutching a silver miniature of a big trophy, paraded out with the other Russian girls, who carried bouquets of red roses.

At Zaharias' request, the large trophy will remain on display at the Museum of Sports Art in the Garden, where Zaharias wrestled professionally in years gone by.

NCAA basketball semifinals bring on cases of nerves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — This Midwest city was shrouded today in a war of nerves and basketball hysteria as Providence faced Memphis State and Indiana fought top-ranked UCLA in the semfinals prelude to Monday night's national collegiate championship showdown.

The battle of nerves centered around the coaches and players of the three teams which are underdogs and possessing dreams of dethroning UCLA, winner of six consecutive national titles and a heavy favorite to annex number seven.

With Big Ten champion Indiana, of course, UCLA was the immediate problem since the hotshot Hoosiers had a 4:10 p. m., EST, date with the proud Bruins, unbeaten in 73 straight games over three seasons.

Bob Knight, the Hoosier coach, said he planned to "do the same things we have done in 26 games this season. I'm not smart enough to devise something tricky to play anybody."

Knight said he had had suggestions from people "from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Bangor, Maine on how to play UCLA" but that he "hasn't used any of them. I've been accused of a lot of things but not running the operation myself isn't one of them."

Knight denied sixth-ranked Indiana would employ the freeze against the Bruins but Coach John Wooden of UCLA predicted the Hoosiers would stall.

Wooden said he "wouldn't change our game to play anybody. We're not awed by being in the semfinals. Experience is a big thing. I have always said I'd rather have talent than experience."

Told that everybody was conceding the championship to UCLA, Wooden smiled and said:

"That's a nice position. I wish the right people would concede it. The ones who are conceding us the championship are the ones who aren't playing."

All-age baseball clinic scheduled

A baseball clinic, designed for Fayette County persons of all ages interested in the sport, will be held from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday, March 31 at Washington Senior High School.

Persons attending the clinic, which is hoped to be an annual event, will receive valuable instruction from five persons, including the head baseball coaches at Washington C. H. and Miami Trace high school.

Rodger Mickle, head baseball coach at Washington C.H. who will be directing the clinic instruction, said seven topics will be discussed at the four-hour seminar.

Mickle, now in his second season as Washington C. H.'s head baseball coach, will speak on infield play, and Dave Pellior, the fourth-year head coach at Miami Trace, will talk of hitting.

OTHER SCHEDULED speakers and their topics are Dale Lynch, Washington C. H.'s reserve baseball coach, outfield play; Laurence (Bucky) Dumford, a Blue Lion assistant baseball coach this season, pitching, and former Washington C. H. baseball coach Bill Martin, catching. Base running and practice organization will also be discussed.

Members of the Washington C. H. Blue Lion baseball team will be used to demonstrate the techniques explained by the speakers.

Mickle said the purpose of the clinic is to give those interested the proper technique of playing and practicing the sport and to develop coaching points for youngsters.

The Blue Lion baseball mentor said he hopes 200-300 persons will attend the clinic, including fathers and sons, Little League and Babe Ruth players and coaches as well as other interested persons in Fayette County.

Door prizes such as baseballs, bats and hats will be given away, Mickle said, and there is a strong possibility that a film of the Cincinnati-Oakland World Series will be shown.

12-hour Sebring auto race has Corvettes on the pole

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — With two raucous-sounding Corvettes leading the way from the front row, 70 production line sports cars were to be flagged away at 11 a.m., EST, today in the 23rd renewal of the Sebring 12-hour road race.

Tony DeLorenzo of Troy, Mich., was at the wheel of one of 7-liter machines and Dave Heinz of Tampa, Fla., at the other.

Their mission was to complete something over 220 laps or 1,190 miles around the ancient 5.2-mile Sebring airport course before the shutdown at 11 p.m.

DeLorenzo, a dark-haired near-sighted veteran from the Detroit auto plants, won the pole postion at a speed of 106.892 m.p.h.—a record for Grand Touring cars at Sebring.

Heinz, who spends a lot of time explaining that he isn't a member of the mustard and ketchup family even though he raced for years in a No. 57 car, qualified his Corvette at 105.170 m.p.h.

Another Corvette, this one wheeled by Bob Tullius of Falls Church, Va., Mike Murray of Toledo, Ohio, and Ike Knupt of Springfield, Mo., held a second row position beside a hot Porsche Carrera driven by Peter Gregg and Hurley Haywood.

Royal rookies twirl no-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'd rather have this happen on April 23 when it counts," said Kansas City rookie Steve Busby.

"I was thinking about the law of averages. Sometimes you follow a guy who's throwing a nohitter and everything breaks loose," added another rookie, Doug Bird.

Their comments followed their combined no-hitter Friday, a 4-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Detroit Tigers.

It was the first time the Tigers had been held hitless since Joe Horlen of the Chicago White Sox did it in September of 1967.

Bird yielded the lone Detroit run in the seventh as Norm Cash walked and pinch runner Joe Staton came around on a stolen base, passed ball and infield grounder.

The three Cruz brothers— Jose, Hector and Cirilo—started in the outfield and led St. Louis over the New York Mets 9-2. The trio got five of the Cardinals' 12 hits, Cirilo slamming a triple in the five-run seventh that locked up the victory for Bob Gibson.

In other games, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, the Atlanta Braves topped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, the Houston Astros slipped past the Minnesota Twins 4-3, the Cleveland Indians tripped the Chicago Cubs 2-1, the Boston Red Sox downed the Chicago White Sox 7-6 in 10 innings, the Oakland A's beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, the San Francisco Giants belted the California Anges 6-1, the Montreal Expos tamed the Baltimore Orioles 2-1, the Cubs downed the Brewers 4-1 in a 'B' squad contest and the New York Yankees nipped the Texas Rangers 3-2 in 16 innings.

White Sox outfielder Carlos May suffered a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg as Chicago defeated Boston 7-6 in 10 innings. He is expected to be sidelined 2-3 weeks.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with a pair of homers in the Cubs' 'B' victory over the Brewers. Ferguson Jenkins worked seven innings for the Cubs, yielding five singles and one run.

Willie McCovey blasted a two-run homer off Nolan Ryan in the fourth inning and Juan Marichal pitched six innings of two-hit ball as the Giants defeated the Angels.

Charlie Spikes' sixth home run of the exhibition season, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, gave the Indians their victory over the Cubs in a rain-shortened game.

Fred Stanley's single and Johnny Callison's double in the bottom of the 16th inning gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Paul Casanova knocked in the Braves' winning run with a single in the seventh inning against the Phillies. The Reds scored three runs in the fourth and got five-hit pitching from Jim McGlothlin and Ed Sprague to defeat the Dodgers.

A sacrifice fly by Lee May and Jim Wynn's single produced two runs in the ninth inning to boost the Astros past the Twins.

GETS JOB BACK — R. Gordon Rule (above) has been reinstated as the Navy's top cost cutter, a post he lost after telling a Senate panel about weapons-contract negotiations. Pentagon sources announced his return.

Returnee remembers ill fated day

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— After missile narrowly missed Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Stackhouse's A4 Skyhawk, a trailing MIG poured bullets into his plane and the native of suburban Cincinnati thought to himself, "this is going to be a bad day."

The former prisioner of war then recalled the chilling moments his burning plane descended into North Vietnamese territory near Haiphong six years ago, almost to the day.

Stackhouse, who has gained back six of the 46 pounds he lost while in captivity, returned to his former hometown Thursday, shrugging off a hero's welcome with "I was just doing my job."

Suburban Norwood was celebrating Charles Stackhouse Day and the gaunt veteran was greeted by his brother, Air Force Maj. William Stackhouse upon arrival at the Greater Cincinnati Airport.

Originally listed dead by the military when witnesses reported no parachute from his burning plane, Stackhouse credited "the ability to laugh and a tremendous faith in God and country" with carrying him through.

"I never became a religious zealot. I just became deep friends with God," he said.

Fight coming on troops in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Congress may do battle on a new front later this year when Senate Democrats push for a sharp cut in the number of U.S. servicemen stationed abroad, with the emphasis on Western Europe.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield already has taken the first step toward that likely confrontation.

He believes inflation, the budget squeeze, and the woes of the dollar will strengthen the case and the potential Senate vote for troop cuts—a vote the administration would fiercely oppose.

The White House has denounced as irresponsible any move to force unilateral U.S. troop reductions. The talk and the tactics may get tougher.

Two years ago, the issue produced one of the most intensive of lobbying drives by the Republican administration, to block a Mansfield measure that would have halved the U.S. force stationed in Europe.

Mansfield and his allies are braced for another round on the troop question, perhaps during the summer when the Senate begins shaping the defense budget. That would add a new item to an agenda of White House-congressional disputes now centered on domestic spending.

The initial move came when Senate Democrats voted overwhelmingly to seek over the next 18 months a substantial reduction in the 600,000 U.S. troops now stationed overseas. Their resolution mandates Mansfield to confer with House and administration leaders about such cuts.

While the wording is general, the key target—and a familiar one for Mansfield—is a cutback of U.S. troops in Europe, where some 300,000 remain.

They have tried before, and lost. The White House deployed virtually every lobbyist at its command, even enlisted leaders out of the Democratic past, in its campaign against cutbacks two years ago.

Now, he contends, no single act would do more to check inflation at home and "the enfeeblement of the dollar abroad."

The White House said it would make no sense for the United States to cut its force levels unilaterally amid negotiations with the Soviet Union for mutual troop cuts in Europe.

Mansfield says as long as U.S. forces stay put in Europe, the Russians will be under no pressure to move out.

The question is not only one of troops, it is of military dependents in Europe, too. Mansfield put the total at some 525,000, and said there are billions of dollars to be saved through cutbacks.

There is another, simpler argument advanced in the Senate: Why should the United States maintain such a force in Europe, long after World War II, in defense of allies whose economies are flourishing?

In the months ahead, Mansfield and his supporters are going to be pressing for an answer.

The dry cleaners came here from throughout the state at the invitation of Hugh Patton, owner of the Sunshine Laundry and Dry Cleaning business. The association president, Phil Myers, of Ashland, conducted the meeting following dinner in the Terrace Lounge.

Bees trip on kowhai

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand's golden-flowered kow-hai tree is being blamed for sending thousands of bees on a drug "trip."

The bees were found in an apparent coma on the banks of the Mokihinui River.

Officials of the Agriculture and Fisheries Department say the kowhai has a narcotic effect on bees, which can suffer hallucinations after sipping the nectar. The bees usually recover.

Killed the polluters

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern about air pollution and quality of the environment goes back centuries. According to the editors of the new, 38th edition of "Steam," a technical book published by the Babcock & Wilcox Co. since 1875 for colleges and universities: " . . . at one time people were executed in England for burning coal because it produced highly noxious and dangerous fumes."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hormone Artificially Created

Two tiny parathyroid glands lie deep within the thyroid gland in the middle of the neck. These pinpoint hormone-producing glands play a vital role in the function of almost every organ of the body. A small segment of these glands produces a hormone whose exact nature has been elusive, although recognized as important.

When a deficiency of the parathyroid glands has been known to exist, replacement had to come from the parathyroids of animals.

Today a group of scientists, at the National Institutes of Health and at the Mayo Clinic, have artificially created (synthesized) the important parathyroid hormone. It is expected that unlimited amounts will be available soon for the treatment of conditions that depend on its use.

At the University of Toronto, Dr. John T. Murphy and his team are using a computer which is painlessly attached to a cat's brain in an effort to learn more about diseases like Parkinsonism.

The movement of a single muscle of a cat produces electrical vibrations that are recorded and interpreted. Even the early studies have already shown important relationships between parts of the brain and the complex movement of muscles that make us function.

After intestinal surgery, it is most important for the doctor to know exactly when the bowel begins to function again.

Peristalsis is a term used to describe the wave-like movements that occur normally all along the intestinal tract.

Sometimes, after surgery, these movements do not quickly reappear. This causes concern because it is an unwanted complication.

Dr. Peter R. Daggett, of the Westminster Hospital in London, has devised a method for earlier recognition of the slightest peristaltic waves as they begin to return in the intestine. Previously, a stethoscope was used to hear these sounds of motion.

Using ultrasonic vibrations (ultrasound), Dr. Daggett can detect bowel activity earlier than before. This method has great importance in overcoming a complication that is of great distress to the patient and to the physician.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH. Gnawing the inside of the cheeks can cause chronic irritation of the delicate lining of the mouth. This mucous membrane can be scarred by the persistence of this habit. It should be controlled.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

The loser-on-loser play is a weapon that every competent declarer carries in his bag of tricks. It is a play by which he deliberately concedes a trick he doesn't have to lose in exchange for one he does have to lose — and winds up gaining some other trick he would otherwise have lost.

Here is a simple case where West leads a club against six spades. Declarer wins, draws two rounds of trumps and finesses the jack of hearts.

When it wins, he ruffs a club and finesses the queen of hearts. At this point, instead of simply cashing the ace in the hope of finding the suit divided 3-3, declarer first makes the more subtle move of ruffing dummy's last club.

The purpose of the ruff is to protect to the nth degree against the possibility of losing two diamond tricks, which at this point is the sole danger in the hand.

South then plays a heart to the ace, supremely confident of the outcome. When the hearts fail to divide 3-3, declarer does not attempt a diamond finesse — which would prove fatal as the cards lie — but instead leads dummy's last heart and on it discards a diamond.

The result is that West wins the heart and finds himself in the unpleasant position where he must lead a diamond to the A-Q or yield a ruff and discard by returning a club. Either way declarer makes the slam.

What South really does by this method of play is exchange one loser for another. He deliberately loses a heart trick he doesn't have to lose instead of a diamond he does have to lose. In the process he creates a situation that is certain to yield him the crucial twelfth trick. Who could ask for anything more?

Proxmire bares tax return; hair transplant cost $2,758

WASHINGTON (AP)—Estimating his net worth of $182,000, Sen. William Proxmire has published his 1972 federal income tax return in the Congressional Record.

It shows that the Wisconsin Democrat paid $2,758 for his celebrated hair transplant and wrote off the operation as a medical expense.

A number of senators print annual financial statements. Proxmire is the only one known to have made public his entire tax return.

Filing jointly with his wife, from whom he is separated but not divorced, Proxmire listed a total 1972 income of $70,198.

Of that, $42,500 came from his Senate salary, $19,707 from book royalties and speeches, $4,600 from his wife's catering business and $3,391 in interest.

The separate financial statement shows Proxmire owns two homes in Washington, D.C., on which he is paying off mortages and one home in Madison, Wis.

He listed checking and savings accounts with a combined balance of $3,500 and $96,000 in federal, state and municipal bonds.

Proxmire and his wife listed $3,574 in medical expenses as tax deductions, including the money spent on the hair transplant.

He listed 20 speeches for which he had been paid more than $300 each and said he had made a series of speeches for the Brookings Institute in Washington for $150 a speech.

According to the return, the Proxmires paid $15,852 in taxes, receiving a refund of $654 and crediting $864 to next year's tax.

Proxmire previously had disclosed his net worth—dating to the time he was elected to the Senate in 1957—in 1963, 1965, 1967, 1970, and 1972.

"It's easy," the judge said. "Each two letters are for one of my three children, two sons and a daughter. PE is for Peter, Ru is for Rudge, and KA is for Kay."

Ohio's crime fight plan is approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's $30 million comprehensive development plan for criminal justice has been approved by the federal government, Development Director David C. Sweet said Friday.

Sweet, at a news conference, called the 1973 plan "the most inclusive, encompassing blueprint for criminal justice ever prepared in this state."

Under the plan, some $12 million of the federal money would go to regional planning units in the state's six major urban centers—Toledo, Cleveland, Akron, Columbus, Cincinnati and Dayton.

In addition the state will be divided in four geographical regions for administrative planning, Sweet said. Seventy-five per cent of funds in the plan, he said, would go directly to units of local government.

In 1969, Sweet said, the state had no plan for handling federal crime-fight funds other than to buy riot control equipment.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the present program in Ohio is among the best in the nation," Sweet said. "We have turned a hardware program into a people program.

The plan, supervised by the Criminal Justice Supervisory Commission, allocated nearly 16 million to law enforcement; more than $1 million for crime prevention; nearly $3 million for the improvement of the judicial process and over $5 million for corrections and rehabilitation.

The district funding will be as follows: Northwest Ohio, $1,207,533; Northeast Ohio, $3,014,643; Southwest Ohio, $1,263,559 and Southeast Ohio, $1,621,268.

For the regional planning units the funding will be: Cleveland, $3,703,307; Columbus, $1,015,176; Cincinnati, $1,832,790; Dayton, $1,212,930; Akron, $1,141,160 and Toledo, $958,749.

Dystrophy drive nets $364 here

The house-to-house campaign in Washington C. H. to raise funds in the fight against muscular dystrophy netted $364.29, according to Miss Sandy Fackler, campaign chairman.

Police hunt missing car, two 'prospective buyers'

City police are looking for two Fayette County men in connection with a possible conversion of trust incident occurring at Don's Auto Sales, 518 Clinton Ave.

Police said the two had driven a car from the used car lot Tuesday, promising to return to pay for the vehicle on Wednesday. Dale Ward, operator of the business, said he had not seen the two men since, and all attempts to make contact with them had failed.

Ward said one of the men had been to the lot earlier and had driven the car, then returned later with his friend. The two allegedly told Ward they wanted to purchase the car and would return with payment the next day.

The car a 1969 Buick, was valued at $1,600.

NINE WINDOWS in a garage owned by Glendon Yerian, Ohio 38, were broken out sometime overnight Thursday, police report. The garage was located at 316 Walnut St. Damage was set at $50.

Raymond Greer, Jamestown, reported to sheriff's deputies the theft of two batteries from his disabled car parked on McKillip Road, near Jeffersonville, early Saturday.

Greer said he parked the car about 12:30 a.m. when it developed engine trouble. When he returned to the vehicle at 2:30 a.m. a battery on the back seat and the one under the hood were both gone. Loss was estimated at $37.

KIRKPATRICK FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,

The funeral can be a worthwhile experience if it meets the religious, social and psychological needs of the bereaved family and mourners. The arrangements for the funeral are important in giving the mourners some useful and helpful things to do. This serves to confirm the reality of physical death so that grief can gradually give way to recovery of a wholesome mental attitude.

Respectfully,

Richard Kirkpatrick

VC releases list, attaches conditions

POW exchange deadlocked

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The United States announced today it has received a list of 32 American prisoners from the Viet Cong but indicated that new conditions attached to their release are unacceptable and must be negotiated.

The Communists proposed that the repatriation of the last group of 139 American prisoners held by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong could begin Monday if the conditions are met.

A spokesman for the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission said that a letter accompanying the list "appears to set forth conditions, some of which are not in accordance with the agreement and the protocols" of the Jan. 27 cease-fire.

The spokesman emphasized that Brig. Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, "accepted the list on the basis that there are absolutely no conditions attached to it."

Wickham, the spokesman said, advised the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations that the accompanying letter "will be considered by his authorities just as would other four-party Joint Military Commission correspondence."

The Viet Cong list included one American captured a day before the signing of the ceasefire and who was not mentioned before. He was identified as Lt. Cmdr. Philip A. Kientzler, a Navy flier reported shot down below the demilitarized zone.

The Communists proposed all 32 be released at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport. The release of 107 American prisoners held by North Vietnam would follow.

A Viet Cong spokesman said the Communists already had sent a letter to the Americans recommending that the release begin Monday and end Wednesday, the deadline for the repatriation of all American prisoners and for completion of U.S. troop withdrawals under terms of the agreement.

"The United States delegation already has accepted the list and the plan for release but has not yet replied about the U.S. troop withdrawal," the spokesman said.

There was no mention of nine American prisoners held by the Communists in Laos. A U.S. demand that North Vietnam provide a list of these prisoners and the time and place they would be released had delayed the release of the last group of American prisoners in Vietnam, which initially had been planned to begin today and end Sunday.

The Viet Cong proposal made the prisoner release contingent on these demands:

1. The last phase of the withdrawal of American forces shall begin on Monday, the day the United States begins to receive its prisoners. The prisoner repatriation and the withdrawal of American forces should be completed by Wednesday.

2. The 825 American military personnel attached to the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission should be withdrawn by 8 a.m. Saigon time, Thursday, March 29.

3. The 159 Marines attached to the U.S. Embassy staff as guards must be withdrawn.

4. After 8 a.m. Thursday, the only U.S. military team in Vietnam will be one charged with accounting for Americans listed as missing in action in North and South Vietnam.

Cold preventive works, but cost remains too high

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A British-American research team says it has tested successfully a substance that prevents the common cold but says it now costs too much for practical use in staving off man's sneezes and sniffles.

A Stanford University scientist and three British researchers reported they tested the substance, called Interferon, on human volunteers in Britain.

The American, Dr. Thomas C. Merigan, noted that Interferon has been used in Russia and Finland and even is available over the counter in small quantities in the Soviet Union.

"It is a feasible approach," Merigan, chief of the division of infectious diseases at Stanford Medical School, said of Interferon's ability to prevent colds.

"But whether it becomes practical depends on whether we can gain more production and make it economically or get other means of application."

An effective dose of Interferon costs several thousand dollars to produce by present methods, Merigan and his British colleagues reported in the current issue of Lancet, a British medical journal.

They described Interferon as a protein derived from white blood cells infected by viruses. They said the infected cells secrete a substance that interferes with — or prevents — viral infection of other cells.

Merigan and the three British researchers — Drs. Sylvia E. Reed, Thomas S. Hall and David A. J. Tyrrell — said they tested the substance at Harvard Hospital, Salisbury, Wiltshire, England.

Although "years and years" away from a practical application, the substance could become useful in the future with simplified administration methods and improved production techniques, possibly even laboratory synthesis, Merigan said.

Claim Uganda being invaded

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Uganda claimed today that a 3,500-man force from Tanzania was attempting an invasion.

It said the invasion was planned by President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Milton Obote, the deposed Ugandan president, and Nyerere would have "to bear the blame for the consequences."

Radio Uganda said advance elements of the force had been captured well inside Uganda.

The broadcast said the invaders comprised Tanzanian troops and Asians expelled by President Idi Amin's military regime last year.

The radio did not indicate if there had been fighting between the invaders and Ugandan army soldiers or the extent of casualties, if any. It said some of those captured were Asians.

Relations between the two East African nations have been strained since January 1971, when Amin overthrew Obote in a military coup.

Obote took refuge in Tanzania, whose president had refused to recognize Amin.

Hostilities between the two countries reached flashpoint last September, when Uganda claimed that an 8,500-strong invasion force made up of Obote supporters launched an attack on their homeland from Tanzania.

Uganda also charged that Tanzania had armed and equipped that force and that it enjoyed the full support of the Tanzanian government.

Bloodshed continues in Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — A Roman Catholic civilian was killed and his brother seriously wounded during the night after two offduty British soldiers were lured to their deaths and two others critically hurt.

The civilian was killed by a hail of bullets when he opened his apartment door to let his brother in. The gunmen apparently marched up behind the brother, fired, then fled in a car.

The three deaths brought Northern Ireland's known fatalities in more than 3½ years of violence to 758.

They occurred less than 15 hours after the Irish Republican Army rejected British peace plans and spurned moderate Catholic pleas to lay down their arms.

Police called the slaying of the soldiers a "fiendish crime — the worst here in four years." Army headquarters said: "We are absolutely revolted by these cold-blooded murders."

Four soldiers, unarmed and dressed in civilian clothes, were enjoying an off-duty drink at a hotel near Belfast when they got into a conversation with two girls.

Demos end party meet in harmony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats have concluded an amicable series of meetings that resulted in a series of compromises.

Despite several rebuffs in the selection of six members Friday afternoon for the party's executive committee, chairman Robert S. Strauss told reporters he was pleased.

Alabama's Democratic chairman Robert Vance, an executive committee member, put it another way: "This was a magnificent meeting because everybody goes away mildly dissatisfied."

At its two-hour session, the executive committee rejected at least two Strauss choices, Philadelphia Democratic leader Peter Camille and Utah's Wayne Black, and picked a list that included a black, a Mexican-American and a proMcGovern labor leader.

Earlier, old-line party leaders failed in a bid to remove more reform-minded members of the executive committee after the full National Committee ratified a compromise slate of 25 at-large members.

Although the meetings saw organized labor merge with a larger voice in the party organization, the only union official who won a place on the 25-member executive committee was Floyd Smith of Cleveland, president of the International Association of Machinists and an all-out supporter of the McGovern-Shriver ticket last fall when most of organized labor stayed neutral.

Gray nomination in limbo; eye strength of Nixon help

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an apparent strategy move, Senate supporters of L. Patrick Gray III have put hearings on his nomination to be FBI director into a week of limbo to gauge administration support.

The move came as the White House said once again it supports his nomination.

A Senate Judiciary Committee spokesman Friday said that the hearings will not be resumed before the week after next.

Indications were that Gray's supporters are waiting for a signal on whether the administration was going "to put some muscle" into seeking votes for Gray or was washing its hands of him.

But at the Florida White House, an administration spokesman said there is no intention to withdraw the nomination.

"The President has submitted Mr. Gray's nomination. The President supports that nomination," he said.

Gray, acting FBI director since last May, has testified he has not lobbied senators outside the hearing for votes in his behalf and had turned down offers from friends to try to help him.

He said he had "to sit here in this pit" and try through his testimony to convince committee members and other senators they should support his nomination to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover.

At the outset, Gray's chances of winning confirmation looked good, with Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader, the only senator who openly opposed his appointment.

But after the hearings began to center on the FBI's investigation of the Watergate case, even supporters of the nomination said the outcome would be doubtful.

It was during the hearings Thursday that Gray said it was "probably correct" that White House counsel John W. Dean III had lied to FBI agents last June during its investigation of the Watergate case.

Byrd had asked Gray if Dean had not lied in telling an agent that he would have to check on whether E. Howard Hunt, one of the Watergate defendants, had an office in the White House executive offices.

The White House Friday said that any claim that Dean had lied was "reprehensible, unfortunate, unfair and incorrect."

Most officials agree alcohol worst U.S. drug problem

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal commission report listed alcohol as the nation's No. 1 drug problem and an Associated Press survey of persons involved in drug education, rehabilitation and enforcement shows widespread agreement—but only about alcohol.

"You can buy it and not have to steal a TV set every day," said Dr. George Gay, an official at Haight Asbury Free Medical Clinic in San Francisco. "Far and away it's the most dangerous drug we have."

"I think they're putting the narcotics addiction problem into perspective quantitatively and qualitatively — namely that heroin is not the No. 1 problem," said Dr. Robert Newman, assistant commissioner for New York City addiction programs.

The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse rated alcohol the No. 1 drug problem in a 482-page report issued Thursday.

The report also said government efforts might be perpetuating drug use rather than discouraging it, urged creation of a new antidrug agency, said public notions about drug use are largely wrong and reaffirmed its year-old recommendation to end criminal penalties for marijuana usage.

The report is the result of a two-year study; the reaction to its findings on drugs other than alcohol was more varied:

—David Roth of Cleveland's Free Clinic was "surprised to see they stood firm with their beliefs. I thought they'd try to make it look ... not so radical." But Roth said he's pessimistic about the commission's recommendations having any effect in view of President Nixon's call for tougher drug laws.

Man drowns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus man whose canoe capsized in the churning, frigid waters of the Olentangy River here Friday drowned despite dramatic efforts to rescue him.

A second person, possibly a young boy, also was believed drowned, although dragging operations failed to turn up the body. The search was to continue today.

Fire Department rescue crews summoned to the scene by witnesses to the accident pulled the body of George S. Zactaury, 29, from the water.

Report babies were subjected to experiments

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe says a University of Texas research team deprived 17 infants of a food substance essential for their development in an experiment conducted in 1956-57.

In a story in today's editions, the Globe said the researchers deprived the infants for up to 13 weeks of linoleic acid, a fatty substance contained in mother's milk, even though they knew a diet without this food had produced skin breakdown, "marked emaciation" and possible damage to the brain or spinal chord in animals.

The study, published in 1959, was sent to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., by Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint of Harvard Medical School, the Globe said.

Poussaint told Kennedy in a covering letter that he hoped the material would serve as "documentation that will enable you to gain the support for legislation that involves human subjects in research."

Tag slogan stirs fuss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan's press secretary said Friday that it was unbecoming of the lieutenant governor to accuse Gilligan of breaking the law.

Robert Tenenbaum said Gilligan would have no comment on John Brown's accusations that the governor ignored Ohio law and is costing Ohio taxpayers $250,000 by having a safety slogan painted on 1973 license plates.

Brown, a Republican, said the slogan "Seat Belts Fastened?" caused about 25 per cent of the plates to warp and made painting them difficult. He said at 10½ cents a plate, the governor wasted a quarter of a million dollars.

He said Ohio law specifically states what can appear on license plates, and slogans are not on the list.

Beef prices may drop

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The president of the American National Cattlemen's Association says the price consumers pay for beef should drop in two to four weeks as supplies increase and weather improves.

John Trotman told a news conference on Friday that he looks for the market to stabilize at a slightly lower level and for wholesale beef prices to fall by several cents per pound.

He said higher prices were caused by demands for beef already in short supply because of severe weather. He said weather killed 200,000 cattle and slowed the rate of growth of millions more.

Despite the losses, Trotman said, the cow herd is up six per cent.

POW calls draft dodgers 'cowards and malcontents'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Repatriated prisoner of war James H. Kasler, who said he refused to meet antiwar demonstrators in Hanoi despite being tortured, Friday branded draft dodgers as "cowards and malcontents."

The 46-year-old Air Force colonel from Indianapolis told newsmen that perhaps 5 per cent of the evaders had valid reasons.

"The remaining 95 per cent are cowards and malcontents just as in any other war," he said at a news conference held at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base prior to his departure for home.

Kasler said POWs were tortured to force antiwar statements from them as early as the spring of 1967 offensive. He didn't go into details but referred to the treatment of prisioners by the North Vietnamese as "barbarous."

Kasler said he felt the North Vietnamese were deluded by antiwar statements into thinking time was on their side and that America's will to pursue the war was waning.

"You wouldn't believe the impact it (the antiwar movement) had on the North Vietnamese."

He said there may have been factional opinions among prisoners on war policy, but 95 per cent of the prisoners supported President Nixon.

Kasler indicated a belief that the prisoners still would be in North Vietnamese hands if the United States had pulled out of the war without negotiating their release.

"If someone had crawled to Hanoi on his knees, we would still be there," he said. "There is only one language the North Vietnamese understand and President Nixon speaks that language."

Kasler described the bombing of Hanoi last Christmas as "one of the most awesome sights in history."

He said he watched the bombing from the "Hanoi Hilton" prison camp, where he was a compound commander, as shock waves rolled over the walls.

"The North Vietnamese were ready to quit," he said. "The fires burned all night."

Kasler was an F105 pilot shot down in August 1966. He said he broke his right leg in two places in escaping his plane and later was operated on when a bone infection developed. He said the leg has healed.

He wants to continue flying and to command a fighter wing, Kasler said. He plans to go to the Air Force War College in Montgomery, Ala.

Watergate secrets may surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — The six Watergate conspirators still awaiting sentencing are under new pressure to tell what they know about the bugging of Democratic party headquarters and other political espionage.

James W. McCord Jr., former security chief of President Nixon's re-election committee, said he will disclose new facts to the trial judge next week in hopes for a lighter sentence.

McCord charged there was perjury in the trial where he was convicted with G. Gordon Liddy, a top Nixon campaign official, and political pressure was brought on the defendants "to plead guilty and remain silent."

Liddy was sentenced Friday by Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to a prison term of 6 to 20 years. McCord's sentencing was delayed for one week. The final sentence for the others will be imposed after three months in which they can testify before a grand jury and Senate investigators.

"I recommend your full cooperation with the grand jury and the Senate Select Committee," Sirica told the five defendants who pleaded guilty at the start of the Watergate trial.

"You must understand that I hold out no promises or hopes of any kind to you in this matter, but I do say that should you decide to speak freely, I would have to weigh that factor in appraising what sentence will be finally imposed in each case."

The five are E. Howard Hunt, a former CIA agent and White House consultant; Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez. Hunt lives in the Washington area, the others are from Miami.

"None of you have been willing to give the government or other appropriate authorities any substantial help in trying this case or in investigating the activities which were the subject of this case," the judge said.

Sirica accepted McCord's offer to talk privately, made in a letter he hand-delivered Monday, but on the basis he will be free to make it public. The statement will be taken in closed court sometime next week.

McCord was convicted on eight counts of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping and faces a possible maximum sentence of 60 years and a $60,000 fine. Liddy was convicted on all six counts he was charged with.

Hunt's six counts carry a maximum 50 years imprisonment and $40,000. The others, guilty of seven counts, could be sentenced to a maximum 55 years and $50,000.

All except McCord, who is free on $100,000 surety bond, are being held in the District of Columbia jail—available to the grand jury which continues its investigation next week.

Late harvest causes change in need for spring tillage

COLUMBUS — As the 1973 planting season approaches, commercial farmers in Ohio may find that the tillage needed prior to planting is considerably different than it has been for past years. The late harvest in 1972 and 1973 resulted in little fall tillage, although some farmers tilled part of their soil during the winter.

According to Samuel W. Bone, Extension agronomist at the Ohio State University, producers need to consider two things as they select their tillage systems for the 1973 planting season. The first is soil tillage as it affects yields, or crop response, and the time required for tillage and planting. The second is the environmental effect of the tillage.

On some soils, tillage prior to planting may leave bare soil surfaces exposed throughout the growing season. As a result, if the infiltration rate of this soil is not adequate for the rainfall to move into the soil, erosion in the form of soil movement may occur.

Date of planting greatly affects yield for both corn and soybeans. Delay in planting past the optimum date will seriously reduce the potential yield of the crop. Therefore, the tillage system selected must be one that allows planting the crop at the proper time.

Those soils throughout the state that have drainage problems and are fine-textured will require some tillage prior to planting, if corn is to be grown. This normally will consist of plowing during the fall or winter, followed by some preparation prior to planting in the spring.

For those soils that are fine-textured and poorly drained, the option to plow should be continued through March. Plowing later than the end of March may result in plowing at undesirable moisture contents and cause problems in seedbed preparations and late planting.

During April, the specialist explains, the tillage option should be one that tills the soil only to a depth that is dry enough to be worked prior to planting. This decreased tillage may not work as well with a conventional planter as it will with no-tillage equipment. There may be residue on the surface through which the planter must cut. Some additional tillage in the row where the seed is to be placed is also desirable. Conventional planters will not do this satisfactorily; however, no-tillage equipment will.

Light-colored, medium-textured soils that have good drainage will respond to decreased tillage for corn production. On these soils, the best water control management throughout the growing season is adequate surface cover of at least 80 per cent or residue. This residue can be from sod or other previous crops. If drainage — either natural or improved — is adequate on light-colored, medium-textured soils, tillage prior to planting is unnecessary.

On fields that contain both dark-and light-colored soils, some tillage is desirable on the dark soils prior to planting; however, the light soils can be planted satisfactorily with no-tillage. On such fields, a satisfactory method is to chisel to plow depth prior to planting. This will provide enough tillage on the dark-colored soil and leave the residue near the surface on the light-colored soil. It will also provide coarseness of the soil surface to prevent crusting and allow for water movement in the soil. Following chiseling, Bone suggests, it is extremely important to use a planter that does some tillage in the row to make sure adequate seed-soil contact takes place at planting.

At present, no herbicides are available that will permit decreased tillage and still give effective weed control for soybean production. Still, Bone states, the future looks bright, and he expects such herbicides to be made available in a year or two. Double cropping with soybeans — such as soybeans after small grain — will be practical with no-tillage planting when herbicides control vegetation and permit satisfactory yields after wheat is harvested in late June or early July.

PCA loans $1 billion

Production Credit Associations (PCAs) in the Fourth Farm Credit District reached $1 billion in loans outstanding to farmers on March 12. By reaching the one-billion dollar mark, PCAs in Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio have set a national achievement record. Cumulatively they rank as national volume leaders in the extension of short and intermediate-term credit to farmers. As part of the nation-wide Farm Credit System, Fourth District PCAs make loans to farmers and part-time farmers for such needs as equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, educational purposes and much more.

The funds loaned by Production Credit Associations are obtained on the investment markets of the nation. The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville (FICB) is responsible for procuring these funds needed by PCAs.

The bank works with a New York-based fiscal agent to corordinate the sale of bonds on the open money market.

E. Glenn Sanderfur, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville, made the "billion dollar announcement" at a PCA Director-Manager Conference.

Stored grain should be checked

COLUMBUS — As spring approaches and temperatures begin to rise, better have a look at grain in your storage bins. This is a critical period for stored grain if it has undergone much "moisture migration" during autumn or early winter.

Moisture migration is the gradual movement of part of the moisture in grain into one location in the grain mass, according to Floyd L. Herum, agricultural engineer at the Ohio State University. The moisture content of grain throughout much of the bin may drop by one half per cent. This moisture collects in one location, usually the upper surface at the center of the bin, raising the moisture content of that grain to 25 per cent or more.

"Since the moisture accumulates at the surface, it's easy to check. If you can walk on the grain without sinking in, or if it's becoming discolored or has the distinctive smell of spoiling grain, there is a moisture problem," the engineer points out. If the grain was dry when stored, accumulation must have been caused by moisture migration, assuming no water or snow leaked in from the outside.

Moisture migration is caused in the fall when outside temperatures are lower than the grain temperature. Air in grain near the bin wall is cooler, and heavier, than at the center. As this cool air moves slowly downward near the walls and up the center, it comes in contact with the cold grain at the top of the bin. At this point some of its moisture condenses on the grain.

If this condensation occurs for several months, a wet spot may develop and spoil the layer of grain at the middle of the top surface. Although this spoilage is not likely to occur in bins with less than a 3,000 bushel capacity, the seriousness of moisture migration increases as bins get larger, especially as grain gets deeper. Large grain elevators customarily use aeration equipment to control moisture.

Very little migration is occuring now because the grain and outside temperatures should be about the same. But, if much moisture migration has occurred, spoiling grain may be found now and serious trouble can be expected as spring approaches and the grain begins to warm up, says Herum.

If a wet spot is found in a bin, action should be taken right away. The grain can be turned, mixed together if not spoiled badly, or removed and fed or disposed of. If the grain is wet but not spoiled, more time can be taken but the same choices will have to be made within a few weeks.

Moisture migration can occur even in grain adquately dried when stored, according to Herum. "We have observed migration problems in shelled corn drier than 12 per cent." Factors such as initial grain temperature, bin size and shape appear to have greater influence.

If you have persistant moisture migration year after year, you might consider installation of aeration equipment similar to the type used by large grain elevators and terminals. Aeration keeps grain temperatures close to those outside and counteracts the warm air currents carrying the moisture.

Herum recommends a quick check on each bin every two or three weeks from fall to spring. Migration problems aren't too difficult to handle once they are found, but putting them off can prove to be very costly, he points out.

Referendum on egg marketing slated

From April 17 through April 19th, egg farmers throughout Ohio will be voting on a referendum to decide whether Ohio will have an Egg Marketing Program. Voting will be done in County Extension offices April 17, 18, 19.

The objectives of the proposed program are:

1. To promote Ohio egg industry and improve the image and desirability of eggs and egg products by the ultimate consumer through consumer education.

2. To promote the sale of all eggs and egg products through various accepted organizations and to supplement the national program with a state program.

3. To promote the use of all eggs by the distribution of all consumer information material to the homemaker and others.

4. To develop and improve distribution and marketing of eggs, development of new products and the expansion of existing markets.

Farmers with 3,000 birds or less are exempt from the program.

To defray the cost of a marketing program throughout Ohio a deduction of one cent a case of eggs sold for human consumption is proposed. Estimated revenues should be about $60,000 a year.

A nine-member "operating committee" nominated by producers and appointed by the Director of Agriculture will administer the program.

Copies of the official ballot and all other pertinent data regarding the referendum and the proposed marketing program will be in the hands of county agents by April 5.

Mold is found in stored corn

By A.J. BAXTER
Area Extension Agronomist

When did you take the last look at your 1972 corn crop? Was it back in January when you finished picking or shelling the crop? If so, you may have some problems which you hadn't expected.

I have checked several large ear corn cribs recently, and find they are still carrying 23 to 25 per cent moisture and are starting to go out of condition. The high grain moisture, along with the unseasonably high temperatures of early March, were causing the corn to mold.

The same thing can happen in shelled corn bins if it is not managed properly. Moisture migration can take place in shelled corn with changes in outside temperature, and cause pockets of mold to develop.

If you haven't looked lately, right now would be a good time to check that corn you have in storage.

Hog prices increase

Hog prices have climbed higher than anyone expected six months ago. Now farmere and others interested in the hog business are asking about the causes of the record prices, and about the next cyclical downswing of prices.

There are, of course, several reasons for the high prices of hogs. The foremost one is that marketings of hogs have been on a decreasing trend for nearly two years. Furthermore, this is likely to be the sixth consecutive quarter in which hog slaughter has been less than one year earlier. Recent slaughter levels were around 15 per cent lower than those of two years ago.

FHA receives $170 million for farm operating loans

An additional apportionment of $170 million has been released nationally to the Farmers Home Administration for farm operating loans, Lester M. Stone, FHA state director announced. These additional funds were made available in order to meet the increased demand for farm operating loans as a result of the curtailment of the emergency loan program.

Stone said Ohio received an additional $5 million from this apportionment. That brings the total operating loan funds available to Ohio farmers this fiscal year to $8.5 million. Major consideration was given to those states such as Ohio that had counties requesting emergency loan designation.

Director Stone stated that operating loans may be made to eligible family farmers unable to meet their credit needs through private lenders. These loans may be used for the purchase of livestock, machinery, seed, feed, fertilizer, and other necessary operating expenses. The present interest rate is 5⅞ per cent. The repayment of these loans is set up based on the purpose of the loan and the farm income.

Stone suggested that many eligible family farmers adversely effected by weather conditions over the past months may need a FHA operating loan in order to put out this year's crop.

FHA also makes farm ownership loans to eligible family farmers to buy, improve, or enlarge farms, refinance debts, or to finance a nonfarm enterprise to supplement farm income.

Director Stone stated that a loan application and further information may be received at the local county FHA office or by writing: Farmers Home Administration, 121 E. State St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Charolais Classic set in Columbus

Columbus will become the Charolais capital of the world June 8 and 9 when the Ohio State Charolais Association stages the 6th North American Charolais Classic, according to James Gastineau, 1973 NACC chairman.

Highlighting the classic will be the Multi-Million Dollar Bull-O-Vard where 24 of the nation's best Charolais bulls are exhibted by the top Charolais Breeders in the United States.

The annual show will be held Friday afternoon, June 8, at the Cooper Arena at the Ohio State Fairgrounds with approximately 85 females going to the ring. Lloyd Householder, OSCA president and show chairman, reports that the 39 show entries to date indicate keen competition.

Secret voting in national elections became federal law in 1875.

Spring is here

By JOHN GRUBER
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

According to the calendar spring arrived last Tuesday. However, events of the last week would lead one to believe that winter had just begun.

I have received many comments on this column which appeared in last week's paper. That column was prepared on Thursday morning with the sun shining bright and it seemed natural to talk about the spring-like weather which had prevailed for the previous two weeks.

Needless to say, last week's column was somewhat outdated by the time it was printed.

The snow and cold weather of the last week has slowed Fayette County farmers' progress toward spring planting, although we did notice a few tractors back in the field toward mid-week.

The most serious damage has been to Ohio's fruit crop and to many of the spring flower plants and shrubs which were dotting the landscape about 3 weeks early this year.

Locally, a few farmers have expressed concern about early seeded alfalfa which has sprouted. I'd advise checking yours as the cold weather of the past week could have caused serious damage.

CATTLE FEEDERS and dairymen can take a big step toward reducing feed costs through use of the Ohio Livestock Ration evaluation program. This service available through the County Extension Office or from your feed company is of increasing importance with the high cost of protein supplement.

Submitting your feed samples for evaluation will give you an accurate analysis of protein content as well as other factors important in a balanced ration. You may find that protein level of your hand grown feed is sufficient to allow you to reduce the amount of purchased protein supplement.

SOYBEAN GERMINATION tests are a must this year for farmers who are planning to plant their own seed. We've stressed this point many times this year.

However, I am concerned that many farmers have not had a germination test of their seed. Much of the soybean seed produced in Ohio in 1972 has a high incidence of the fungus Phomopsis which can cause reduction in germination.

If you are running your own germination test at home don't sort out rotten or damaged seeds when you select your sample. These beans will not clean out when the seed is cleaned. If you sort them out of your sample you will have a distorted test.

Your best bet is to secure a commercial germination test. You can send a sample to the Ohio Department of Agriculture Laboratories, Seed Section, Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43168. The cost for germination test is $1.50.

If your germination analysis is below 50 per cent or maybe even 60 per cent, I'd advise that you sell those beans and buy better seed.

If your germination is between 50 per cent and 70 per cent and you decide to plant, you should treat the seed which will suppress the growth of the phomopsis and may increase germination by 10-20 per cent or more.

Don't treat the seed before you get an accurate germination test. Once the seed is treated it can only be used for seed, it cannot be sold for other uses.

THE FAYETTE COUNTY Agronomy Committee will meet Wednesday, March 28, at 8 p.m. in the Extension meeting room. The committee will be selecting allied industry representatives and making plans for the 1973 corn club contest and other agronomy activities.

Alfalfa can net more than corn

By A.J. Baxter
Area Extension Agronomist

Is the price of protein concentrate causing your feed bill to be clear out of sight? If so, have you thought about growing more of your own protein right on the farm?

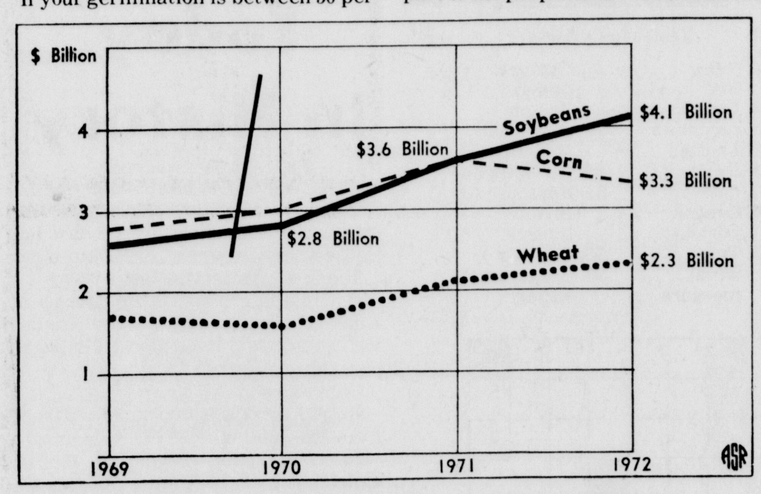
I'm talking about alfalfa which will produce more directly usable protein than any other crop. Alfalfa is an excellent source of protein for dairy and beef cattle, and as a pasture forage can even provide supplemental protein for sows and pigs.

Right now is the time spring alfalfa seedings should be made. I like to see them in the ground by the middle of April. Much of the wheat acreage did not get planted last fall, and if you can use alfalfa on your farm, a direct seeding without a companion crop might just be the most profitable use for those acres. If the job is done right, you can expect three tons of high quality alfalfa hay per acre yet this year. Put your own price on that three tons of hay and I think you might want to try it. With a little luck (and some good management) you should grow at least six tons next year.

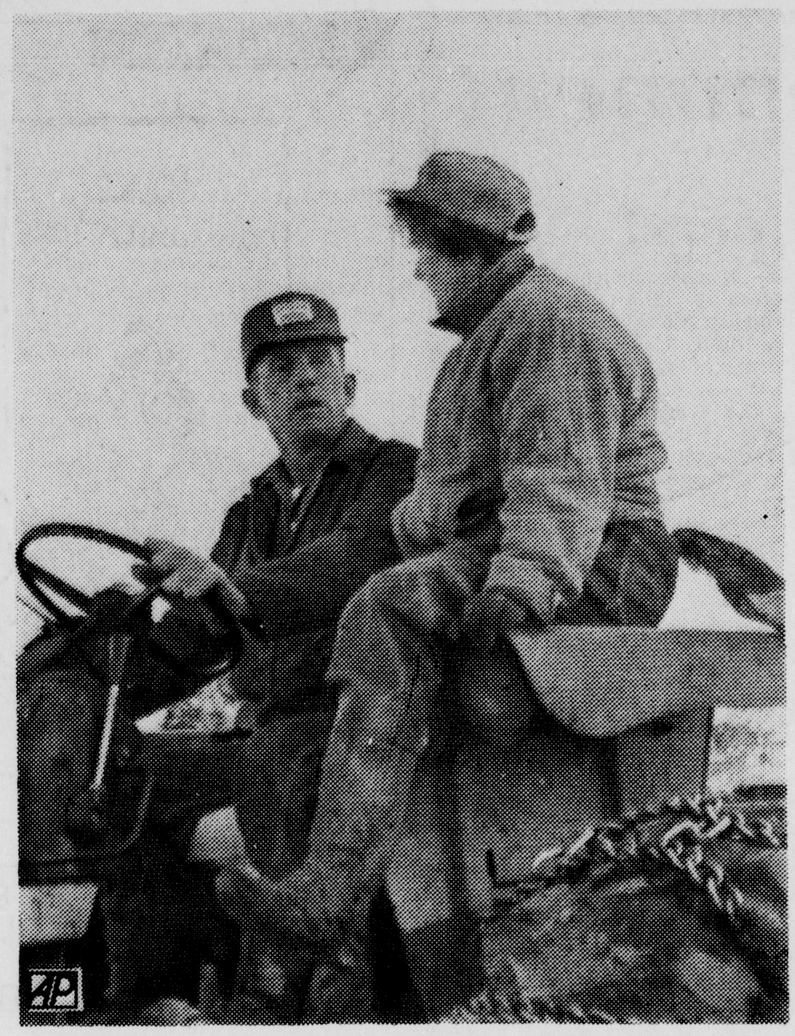
Your county agent has a folder entitled "Alfalfa - the Super-Star of Feeds," which outlines 10 steps to maximum alfalfa yields. Give him a call and ask for one, or drop me a card at the Area Extension Center, 317 S. Fayette St., Washington C.H. 43160 and I will send you a copy.

If the price of protein is giving you problems, I don't think you can afford to overlook alfalfa for 1973.

St. Patrick was a native of one of the western provinces of the Roman Empire — Britain or possibly Gaul. He returned in the 5th century as a bishop to the pagan Ireland, where he had been a captive as a boy, and devoted himself to its conversion. By the time of his death he had traveled over most of the island and converted the greater part of the people to the Christian faith.



SOYBEANS LEAD FARM RECEIPTS — An historic change in U. S. agriculture is now official: soybeans have replaced corn as the number one cash crop for U. S. farmers. The value of soybeans sold in 1972 was $4.1 billion, almost $1 above receipts from corn.



EXPLAINING THE SITUATION — Swine farmer Dale James explains some of the operations of his farm to Mrs. Sherie Weiler, Drummond Island, Mich. Mrs. Weiler was challenged by James to work a day on his farm near Humboldt, Neb., after she advocated a boycott of meat because of rising prices.

Weed control in wheat, oats may be tough

Weed control in wheat and oats may be more difficult this spring and summer than usual, says Edward W. Stroube, Extension agronomist, Ohio State University. Unfavorable planting conditions may reduce stands and leave more space for weeds to grow, he explains.

Because of the late harvest of last year's corn and soybeans, wheat acreage planted last fall in Ohio was less than planned. Many of the acres intended for wheat will be planted to corn and soybeans. Some will be planted to oats this spring; however, many acres may have to be plowed before oat planting because of deep ruts caused by harvesters on wet soil. This may delay oat planting.

An incentive for planting oats in 1973 will be the shortage of straw for bedding. Oat yields of over 100 bushels per acre are not uncommon, and with the current and predicted prices for feed grains, the crop should be profitable. Also, oats, seeded on time and properly fertilized, can produce a good quality and good yield of straw, the specialist says.

Good stands of wheat that get a good start before freeze-up in the fall seldom have serious weed problems. An exception may be Canada thistle, where this weed is present. Most of the other weed problems in wheat occur when there are poor stands of wheat. This can be the result of poor stands from the start or when winter kill is excessive. In this case competition may come from annual weeds such as smartweed, ragweed, pigweed, and some of the grasses such as foxtail and barnyardgrass. There are no good control programs for the grasses.

Weed species and control measures are about the same for oats as for wheat; however, oats are essentially all spring seeded so the weed problems will develop a little later. Also, wild mustard is a more serious problem in oats than in wheat.

There are herbicides which will control broadleaf weeds. In both wheat and oats, 2, 4-D, MCPA, and Banvel are usually effective. Timing and rates are fairly critical. Applications too late or too heavy can cause a loss in yield. Applications should be made after the small grain has started to stool (tiller) but before the stem starts to emerge or grow. The ideal calendar date varies with the type of season, on wheat, and with the planting date, on oats.

On wheat, the application date is usually in late March and early April. The rate of herbicide varies with the formulation and concentration, so Stroube advises farmers to consult the label for specific rates. He says that 2, 4-D will kill most species of weeds; however, Banvel is more effective on Canada thistle and smartweed. MCPA is a little safer for use on oats than 2, 4-D.

Fruit crop in danger

COLUMBUS — Chances of this year's fruit crop making it through to freeze-free weather are slim. The pre spring warm season was three weeks or more ahead of normal schedule, says Fred Hartman, professor of horticulture at the Ohio State University.

Already, stone fruits have suffered considerable damage, particularly in the northern part of the state. Since these fruits have more sensitive buds, there's not much chance they survived the past weekend's cold temperatures. Apples can stand temperatures down to 25 degrees for a short period, particularly the later varieties, or those that still have tight clusters. It will take a few days to determine how much damage the weekend lows caused to apples.

The next month is the critical period for fruits that have made it this far. Temperatures dropping to 20 or below, even for a few hours, could wipe out the crop, says Hartman.

Commercial growers who have artificial heat systems can save some fruit, if temperatures don't drop too low. Strawberry growers may protect their crops with light or mist irrigations. However, if the irrigation water freezes and becomes too heavy on the plants, damage will occur.

Flowers and shrubs in bloom can be protected some by covering with cloth or other suitable material. This would have to be done several times or as often as predicted dips in temperature occur during the next month, he says.

Paper ballots were used in 1634 in Massachusetts. They were provided by the voter himself and were not necessarily marked in secret.

Ohio perspective

Prison for women may be closed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Director Bennett Cooper of the Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections wants to close the Marysville Reformatory for Women.

The facility has only 250 prisoners, and Cooper said the "total is going down constantly." It is the state's only prison for women who represent only 3 per cent of Ohio's prison population of 8,200.

Cooper said he favors a plan "now being formulated" which would house female inmates in local community centers. The state presently has no such facilities.

"They could be leased," said Cooper.

He said he believes local housing would be preferrable to a centralized state institution for purposes of rehabilitation. The director said the Marysville facility "is not a maximum security facility anyway. It's more like a college campus."

Cooper declined to speculate why women make up such a small percentage of Ohio's prison population.

"It raises some eyebrows, but you'll have to draw your own inferences," he said.

Statehouse newsmen ran out of questions for Gov. John J. Gilligan at a recent news conference.

The governor called the session to announce a public information program on insurance. Insurance Director Kenneth DeShetler appeared with him.

After the new consumer program was explained, Gilligan invited questions on other subjects. There were none. The governor smiled and commented to DeShetler: "Look at them. They're buffaloed. It must be spring fever."

Gilligan is fairly accessible to newsmen and holds press conferences rather frequently. One veteran Statehouse reporter commented after the impasse: "It's a case of overkill."

Members of the legislature, who for years haven't been able to agree on a code of ethics for themselves, were something close to ecstasy when the Ohio Legislative Correspondents Association (OLCA) defeated a proposed code for newsmen.

The reporters rejected by a 13-13 tie vote a proposal that would have required them to disclose sources of income and other information to show they had no conflict of interest. Opponents charged that newsmen are not paid by public funds, and that OLCA's Constitution already prohibits lobbying and conflicts of interest.

But, legislators apparently found the development to their liking. House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, said, "It doesn't make sense. Some of you fellows are raising hell about it, and then you won't vote one for yourselves."

Opinion And Comment

Lost . . . hubcaps and tempers!

We're reaching the peak of the shake-rattle-and-roll season in Washington C.H.

Our city has never been notable for the quality of its railroad crossings, and the freezes and thaws of spring aggravate a situation which is never a matter of pride or comfort.

Actually, the crossings have become so bad that in some cases it is difficult for pedestrians, let alone drivers, to navigate them.

City Manager Dan Wolford points out that letters have been sent to the B&O, the DT&I and the Penn Central asking their cooperation in improving these pot-holed, spike-protruding axle traps. As usual, responses are slow in forthcoming.

This is unfortunate indirectly as well as directly, for certainly the railroads were never in more need of good public relations.

The city administration has been watching with interest the progress of legislation introduced in the Ohio General Assembly calling for some type of fund which would be of assistance to municipalities seeking crossing repairs as well as signalization. Presumably, the railroads themselves would augment state and local contributions.

This suggestion seems to offer relief in the indefinite future, but Washington C.H. can't wait. Dealers in used auto parts could line their pockets if they would station representatives at almost any crossing in the city — just to collect the miscellaneous equipment jolted loose.

Bruce to be chief of the American mission in Peking is evidence that quality and ability still count. President Nixon could not have made a better choice for this newest phase of the opening to a world so long closed.

The Chinese will take the Bruce appointment as the tribute that it is to their place in shaping the last decades of the 20th Century. While he will be chief of delegation rather than ambassador, this will be of small moment in the close relationship he is sure to establish with Premier Chou En-Lai, whose fluent French will mean a common working language with Bruce.

For all his years abroad in the highest reaches of diplomacy in Paris, Bonn and London and the tributes that have come to him, one important attribute has been unmistakable. He is an American with no question of identity. This is not in any aggressive sense of the American abroad in an earlier day determined to prove his Americanism.

One of the most cultivated of men in history, literature, the arts, there is nothing of the pseudo-sophisticate about the man who at 75 has now been called back to service. Part of his Americanism is his sense of humor, his chuckling low-keyed laughter. The pompous and the pretentious are put in their place by this urbane gentleman who might have pursued a career as a philosopher if he had not entered the diplomatic service nearly 50 years ago.

A SMALL IRONY in his appointment is the place that he and his beautiful wife, Evangeline, hold in what has been scornfully called the limousine liberal set of Georgetown. In the handsome drawing room of their Georgetown house they have assembled the widest range of guests from government, the diplomatic corps, writers and intellectuals. No arbitrary canon, but the broad spectrum of their interests has set the tone.

It is sometimes said that in the era of instant telephonic contact between heads of state an ambassador makes no difference. Bruce's career, which came to an end with his resignation as ambassador to Britain in 1969, refutes that easy generalization. He has represented his country with distinction and with discreet counsel to officials in the capitals where he has served.

His appointment should hearten the professional career service in the Department of State demoralized by the appointment of so many big campaign check writers. While there are few Bruces, many able career men are resigning because the top posts are being handed out as political rewards.

ANOTHER ambassadorship at least as important as Peking is presently unfilled. Jacob D. Beam, an able career officer who was ambassador to Moscow for four years, has just resigned. In view of the obstacles in the way of the trade agreement signed last year and the long string of other agreements being implemented, Moscow is more vital than ever before to the Nixon-Kissinger generation of peace.

One proposal is for a leading American businessman who would hold the ambassadorship for a year or so and then give way to a career officer. A lot can be said for this. There are instances where the outsider with special capabilities should have precedence over a career appointment. But this does not cover the blanketing in of so-called ambassadors merely on the criterion of big money. We have seen minor disasters aplenty in this category.

FOLLOWING the devastation wreaked by Joe McCarthy in the '50s with the blasting of virtually all the State Department's China specialists, a new generation of Sinologists has come up.

Two, Alfred le S. Jenkins and John Holdridge, will head the backup team for Bruce in Peking. They speak Chinese fluently and Holdridge, on Henry Kissinger's staff, has made all the trips to China that opened the way to the liaison mission.

At about the same time that Bruce goes to Peking in early May the Chinese will send a representative with ambassadorial rank to Washington to head the liaison here. With ordinary luck these should further the opening to the East that has been one of the achievements of the Nixon Administration.

The United States in 1950, after the overthrow of Chiang Kai-shek, decided to pretend that mainland China did not exist. We have seen an extraordinary transition to reality.

TV gold under city streets?

Has cable TV come along just too late to save New York's Mayor John Lindsay?

In a recent swansong utterance, Handsome John warned city governments everywhere against the pretensions of the Federal Communications Commission to seize the "urban oil wells," or the "gold," represented by coaxial cable TV channels under the city streets. In two frustrated terms, Lindsay never did manage to get his hands on enough oil or gold to carry out the welfare missions that are so dear to every municipal liberal's heart.

Lindsay's feeling is that the cities should do their own cable TV franchising without Washington interference. But Dean Burch, the chairman of the FCC, considers that City Hall politicians, seeking new resources of revenue, might tend to be altogether too hoggish in exacting franchise fees. The business of laying TV is "capital intensive," and Burch thinks that anything over a 5 per cent city tax on gross cable income would tend to choke the growth of a new and promising industry.

Burch could be right in his fears, but if the Nixon government really means business about restoring responsibility to the local communities why shouldn't they be permitted to solve their own problems by trial and error?

BE THAT as it may, some cities already are taking Lindsay at his word that there is gold in the coaxial cable. After all, it can put 30 and more channels into a single conduit, which represents a lot of communication mileage.

Newark, N. J., for instance, is one community that is hungry to be in on a TV revolution. The city fathers of Newark had a deal with the big Teleprompter company on cable TV installations. There was some dissatisfaction with the original terms, but ex-Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania, who is now the chief executive officer of Teleprompter, has managed to renegotiate the whole business with Mayor Kenneth Gibson, which might lead one to believe that politicians know how to talk to each other where a businessman might muff it.

The deal for Newark, which still has to go through final readings, gives the city a good break on several matters, including an educational channel, a public-access channel complete with a media center that will train individuals and groups to use it, and a government - communications channel that will help firemen, police and other city agencies. Newark is asking 5 per cent of the gross fees paid for cable TV plug-ins, with 2 per cent going to public access — or "pure democracy" — support.

Cable TV today has 7,000,000 subscribers. By 1980 it could have 30,000,000, hitting half of all the TV homes in the U. S. With its clear vision, it has all sorts of promise, not the least of which is the possibility that it will enable minority groups everywhere to have their say to as many people as may care to listen to them. I have been telling journalism students to get ready for the day when every little community will have room for its local news commentator.

Seeking to coin their own "oil wells," Boulder, Colo., Memphis and Knoxville in Tennessee, Birmingham, Ala., and Louisville, Ky. are all entertaining cable TV bids. Louisville and Birmingham each has 13 applicants.

THE WILDER DREAMS of the cable TV proponents involve cross-country hookups utilizing satellites. There is currently a satellite in Canada. Combined with pay-TV (which operates on fees for individual programs), the use of satellites could bring a vast variety of programs to people 3,000 miles apart. The inevitable restrictionists have already reared their ugly heads, seeking to prevent the widest sort of capitalization of cable TV promise.

In Connecticut, a state representative is drafting legislation that would prohibit cable TV operators from charging additional fees for special programming. For 20 years Zenith Radio has been hamstrung by the negativists in its efforts to provide pay-TV over the existing airwave spectrum.

This has been the grossest sort of imposition in a free enterprise country, and it would be a shame to see the same error repeated as cable TV drives its bargains with cities to get its cables laid and its 30-channel choices into thousands of homes.

"SURE, MISTER, I UNDERSTAND YOU WANT TO REPORT A HOLDUP. THEY ALL DO."

Our envoy to China

The choice of David K. E. Bruce to head the United States liaison office when it opens in Peking in a wise one on several counts. Above all he is, as the President described him, "a man of great stature" in the foreign service. That is of particular importance in this sensitive post.

Bruce has had long experience, and enjoys a well deserved reputation for skill in diplomacy. The fact that he is a Democrat lends a desirable aura of bipartisanship to the appointment. Even his rather advanced age of 75, which might be against him under different circumstances, should prove to be an advantage in a country whose leading public figures are of his generation.

One question of some consequence may be raised about the appointment. Though Bruce has served under five presidents, his orientation has been toward Europe rather than Asia. An old China hand might prove more adept at dealing with the Chinese, all the more so since they have in large measure been cut off from the international community for so many years.

This should not be a serious drawback, however. Two of our government's leading experts on China will be on hand to advise Bruce as his deputies. This is a diplomatic team which promises to give an excellent account of itself as the United States and China feel their ways toward a better relationsip.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The two letters in your newspaper regarding the departure of NCR have been most interesting.

However, neither one mentioned our No. 1 business in Fayette County which is still continuing quite successfully without NCR — FARMING.

How about all the other fine industries that have located in Washington C. H., Jeffersonville, etc., and are quite contented to remain? In addition these companies, in many instances, carry their local address on their products, which is big for our area.

As an owner of numerous rentals and farms in Fayette County, we had just as big a demand for rentals since NCR left as when they were operating there.

The backbone of Fayette County is, as always, agriculture, plus its many fine small store owners and our numerous industries who work together to make Fayette County, Ohio — The Best.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: IF WE DESIRE RESPECT FOR THE LAW, WE MUST MAKE THE LAW RESPECTABLE.– LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(© 1973 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Absent hubby's 'law' appealed

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can settle an argument between my husband and me. We've been married for three years and it's the second marriage for both of us.

We have no children to tie us down. Hubby informed me that he was going on a fourday skiing weekend with "the boys." He also laid the law down as to what I may and may not do while he is gone.

1. I may NOT, under any circumstances, get on a plane and go anywhere.

2. I must be home every evening to receive his phone calls. (He says I can't call HIM because he's not sure exactly where this lodge is, and it's diffucult to reach.)

Why should I sit home for four days twiddling my thumbs while he is off somewhere skiing with "the boys?" It's not as though we were 16 when we got married. We're both over 35 and he's had plenty of time to have fun with his friends.

This is going to end in a showdown to see just how obedient and well-trained he's got me. How should I handle this!

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Tell hubby that you aren't making any promises, but if you should decide to go somewhere you'll be happy to call HIM if he lets you know where he can be reached. And if he calls and you aren't home he shouldn't think you dropped dead because there is still plenty of life in you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his partner hired a very pretty young girl to work in their office. She was there for only 60 days when they gave her a clock-radio for her birthday. Thirty days later they gave her $100 for Christmas.

Don't you think they went overboard for the length of time she was there?

RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: Maybe she put in overtime.

DEAR ABBY: I read the item written by a California physician in which he put down (in diary form) the thoughts of a woman who had taken her elderly father into her home to live with her. The problems she had with him are well-known to all who have shared their home with an elderly parent.

This doctor (a man) wrote a most compelling piece on why a WOMAN should "repay" her senile father's love and care by looking after him in his declining years.

Note, please, that the MAN doesn't have to do anything. He only argues eloquently why his wife, or sister, or mother should do it. The man isn't around the house all day to "diaper" Daddy, decipher his babbling, clean up his messes and endure the ordeal. But he suggests that a properly grateful and respectful WOMAN should. Big deal!

I am not a women's libber. I am a MAN. But I just wanted to point out something you might have missed.

ROBERT L.

DEAR MR. L.: You're right. I missed it. You have a point. And a good one. Thank you for writing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING IN DENVER": If a man will cheat WITH you, he will probably cheat ON you. And after years of practice, he should know all the tricks.

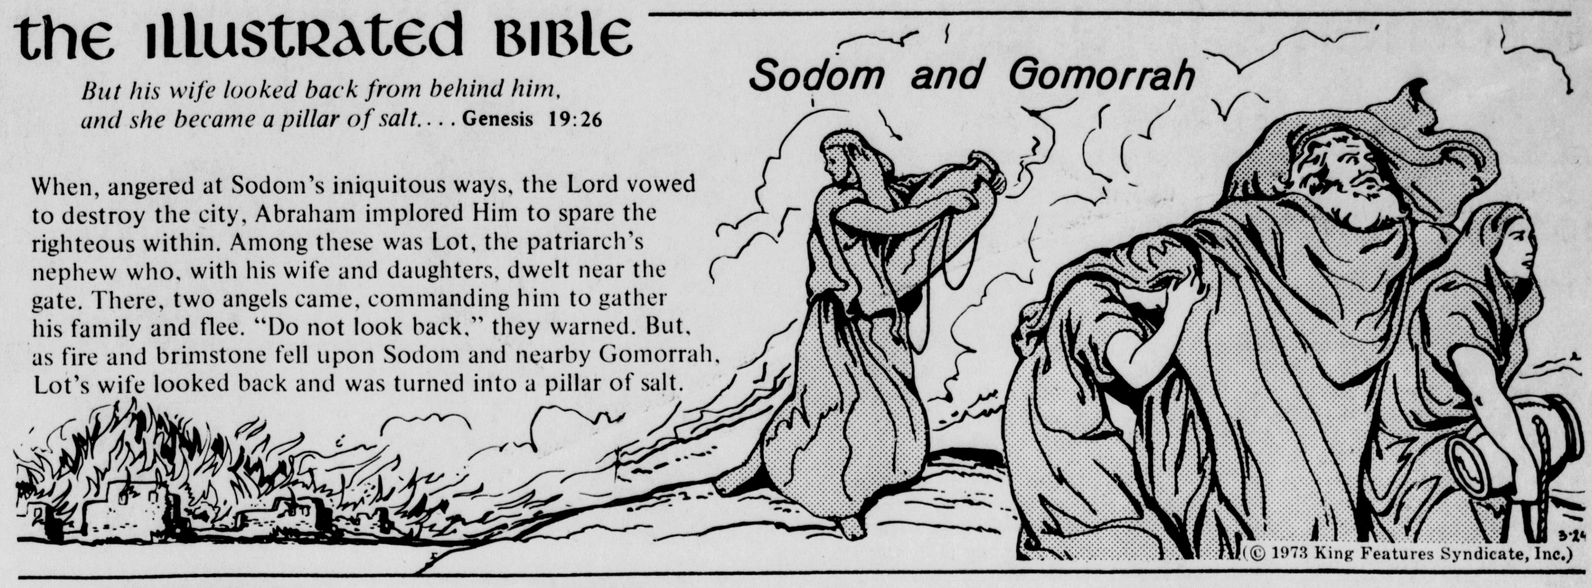
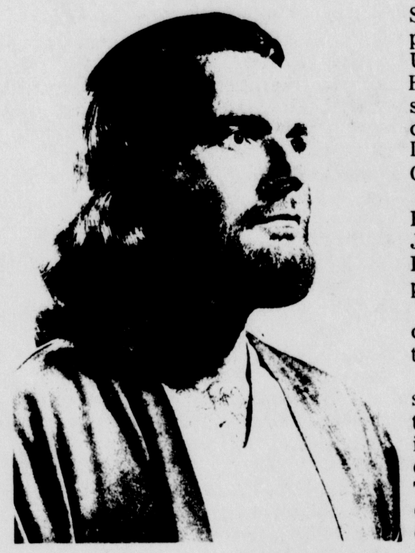
the ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt. . . . Genesis 19:26

When, angered at Sodom's iniquitous ways, the Lord vowed to destroy the city, Abraham implored Him to spare the righteous within. Among these was Lot, the patriarch's nephew who, with his wife and daughters, dwelt near the gate. There, two angels came, commanding him to gather his family and flee. "Do not look back," they warned. But, as fire and brimstone fell upon Sodom and nearby Gomorrah, Lot's wife looked back and was turned into a pillar of salt.



'Sermon on the Mount' slated at Grace Church



FRANK M. ROUGHTON

A dramatic production of "The Sermon on the Mount" will be presented Thursday night in Grace United Methodist Church by the Rev. Frank M. Roughton following a potluck supper for families and friends of the church. This is one of a series of Lenten services being held at Grace Church.

The supper will be at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall, and the portrayal of Jesus of Nazareth by the Rev. Mr. Roughton will be presented about 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary.

The drama has been widely acclaimed in the United States, Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

Mr. Roughton majored in drama and speech in college, studied radio and television in Cincinnati and the drama in New York. He received his divinity degree from Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and a master of fine arts degree in drama from the University of Georgia.

He has traveled the United State and Canada for three years playing the part of Caiaphas, the high priest, in an American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play.

Award slated for religious motion picture

NEW YORK (AP) — When the nation's major religious organizations, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, pick their choice movie fare, it usually is not overtly religious.

In fact, they generally find that the Hollywood films intended to be explicitly religious are actually less so, basically, that some others.

"What we're looking for are films that from the standpoint of the Judeo-Christian perspective, illuminate the human condition," says the Rev. Dr. William Fore, head of an interdenominational film commission.

"It is through man's response to other men that we see God's action in life."

By such criteria, the three branches of faith join next week in making their 1972 Interreligious Film Awards to two motion pictures, "The Emigrants," a story of a family newly come to the United States, and "Sounder," a portrayal of a poor black youngster's achievement of dignity through his parent's love.

As generally has been the case with previous films singled out by the religious groups as the year's best, neither of those honored this time are specifically religious.

"Our primary concern is not for consciously religious films, but for those that bring out authentic human values," says Richard Hirsch, associate director of the Film and Broadcasting Division of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

"From a religious viewpoint, however, one can see in them larger values that are essentially spiritual."

In regard to the movie industry's efforts at ostensibly religious movies. Hirsch said they ordinarily distort the point.

"The core of the problem is that they try to visualize profound qualities that are not easily visualized, and the effect usually ends up in the disaster area," Hirsch says.

Carter Family to appear at McNair Church

The Carter Family, a local vocal group, will present a program of gospel music Sunday evening in McNair Presbyterian Church, Lewis and Rawlings Sts.

The program, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., is sponsored by the church Sanctuary Choir. The group is composed of Charles Carter, his sons, Eddie and Phil, and daughter, Mary Jane.

There will be an interlude of Scripture reading, prayer and a free will offering for the Carter Family.

Following the service, refreshments will be served in the social room by the choir. Garrell B. Leasure is the choir director and organist.

Revival scheduled at Church of God

A revival will open Monday at the Church of God, 505 Rose Ave., and continue through the following Saturday, March 31 with Fred Wilson, of Kettering, as the evangelist. All services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Special music will be provided each night by both members of the congregation and visiting musicians.

The Rev. David L. Henson is the church pastor.

Something to think about

BY: NED KINZER

An unselfish person is one to be admired and envied, for a truly unselfish person cares little for his own needs and is always ready to do for, and give to his fellow man.

Because there are so few of these generous, sincere human beings who are not following the crowd so to speak, by grabbing whatever they can get for themselves, but instead are holding on to the belief that it is better to give than to receive should be admired, and envied by those who do not possess the trait of unselfishness but who wish that they did for they see what success, admiration, and friendships it brings.

HAIRDOS FOR HATS — Coordination of new hairdos and hats for spring has created a do-it-yourself trend that sends fashion right to the top of your head. Choosing the right hat silhouette for yourself and your hairdo and use a setting lotion to create a new you. A constant fashion favorite, bottom left, is the softly cascading center part comb out. The unstudied look of loose curls at the shoulder gain added charm with the romantic

Furs have a sportswear look

Bomb found in post office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A package "flashed" as it sat on a loading dock at the main Columbus post office Friday night, and firemen called to the scene found it contained a bomb.

A bomb detail spokesman said there apparently had been a partial explosion, which ripped a hole in the package, but the device still was active when dismantled.

The U.S. Treasury Department is investigating the incident. It was not disclosed what type of explosive the package contained or who it was addressed to.

Rights debate coming up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House's debate next Wednesday on the women's equal rights amendment will be carried by National Public Radio, a 150-station network that covers every state, according to Rep. Michale Stinziano, D-30 Columbus.

Stinziano said NPR's interest in the vote here "makes it clear that passage in Ohio is crucial" to the fate of the proposal.

Thirty states have ratified the constitutional change, which prohibits discrimination because of sex. A total of 38 states must approve it.

Meanwhile, the Ohio AFL-CIO came out Friday against ratification of the amendment. The big labor organization said in its newsletter it supported equality for women but contended the ERA "could destroy more rights than it creates."

Top animals selected at Dorset Show

A fall-born yearling ram shown by Oren A. Wright & Son of Greenwood, Ind., and a fall-born yealing ewe shown by Warren C. Squires of Chesterville won championship honors Friday in the 13th annual Ohio Dorset Show held on the Fayette County Fairground.

The best 100 animals in the show were to be sold Saturday beginning at noon.

Reserve championships in the show went to a ram shown by Squires, and a ewe exhibited by Wright.

Other top animals in the show were a spring-born yearling ram shown by C. Curtis Mast of Bland, Va., and a ewe lamb shown by Squires.

The junior contest was scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday and was open to qualified 4-H and FFA members.

A lamb smorgasbord was served Friday evening in the Mahan Building.

Burglary case defendant bound to grand jury

Michael W. Davis, 21, Rt. 5, charged with burglary in connection with entry into a Bloomingburg garage, pleaded innocent to the charge in when arraigned Municipal Court Friday and was ordered bound over to the grand jury.

Davis and five Bloomingburg juveniles were charged with the March 16 burglary of Noble's Garage in which several jacks, tools and automotive supplies were stolen. Sheriff's deputies said they recovered the stolen goods from Davis's car when he was stopped later for a traffic violation.

Davis was also fined $200 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and handed a 45-day license suspension for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

He is also charged with contributing to the delinquency of the five juveniles who allegedly accompanied him at the time.

He currently is lodged in the county jail in lieu of bond.

Symposiarchs hear Haigler

Bob Haigler, cattle farmer and after-dinner speaker, poked fun at the prohibitions imposed on certain insecticides, pesticides and livestock feed additives by the government in an informal talk at the Symposiarch meeting Thursday following dinner in the Country Club.

His dry wit took much of the edge off some of his caustic remarks about the government taboos aimed at pollution control. He said if trend to ban certain fertilizers, herbicides, insecticides and additives in livestock feed continues, food production will be seriously reduced and "a lot of people will go hungry."

President Richard R. Willis conducted the meeting at which Colin P. Campbell, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, Wittenburg University, and son of the late Colin C. Campbell, a past national president of the Order of Symposiarchs, was inducted into membership by Haigler.

Lee Lynch, a graduate of the University of West Virginia, was the guest of George Arnold. Hosts for the dinner were Willard H. Perrill, William Hendren and Jerry Sheppard.

Patrons told police a tall man grabbed Silverstein's coin bag, which contained a small amount of money, and ran from the bar. The robber left behind $1,183 in cash and checks in Silverstein's pockets.

JAMES GREENWOOD

Revival opens Sunday at Jeff

JEFFERSONVILLE — "Great Days of Growth in God's Tomorrow" is the theme of a revival which opens Sunday and will continue through Saturday, March 31, in the Church of Christ here.

Rhodes case investigation hits snag

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Commerce Director Dennis Shaul said Friday he still expects a former real estate commissioner to testify Wednesday in a probe of how former Gov. James A. Rhodes got a real estate brokers license.

Friday afternoon, another former commissioner failed to appear after being subpoenaed. Attorney William J. Lohr said his client John Pace was improperly subpoenaed for the hearing.

Lohr said Shaul had no authority to conduct a hearing. He added that the Real Estate Commission "does not have the authority to subpoena anybody to appear before anybody but itself."

Former commission member P. G. Graves, of Cincinnati, has been subpoenaed by the real estate commission to appear before Shaul Wednesday. Lohr also represents Graves.

Both Pace and Graves were members of the Real Estate Commission at the time Rhodes and several key aides were given either broker's or salesman licenses shortly before they left office in January 1971.

Paul Everson of Euclid, a member then and now, has also refused to testify. Shaul, last week, threatened to get a court order forcing him to do so. However, he has not testified.

Shaul said Pace and anyone else who refused to testify could be arrested. He indicated, however, that would not be done.

He was arrested early Thursday at a Salt Lake City hotel where he was employed as a dishwasher.

Country Club election scheduled for April 2

Three new trustees are to be elected for three-year terms, and officers and committee chairman will make reports at the annual membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 2, in the Country Club.

The terms of Bart Mahoney, this year's president, James Vess and Birch Rice expire this year. Their successors will be chosen from among six nominees, William Mount, Allen Willoughby, Richard Wintringham, Otis Hess, Richard Lewis and Mrs. Harry Thrailkill.

The new board will elect the officers and possibly consider plans for the future at a meeting within a week or 10 days.

A letter has been sent by the board of directors to the members, notifying them of the annual meeting and explaining that the annual dues have been increased because of the "rising costs in all phases of the club operation." The board's letter said "the easy way would have been just to make another assessment. However, your board feels that this method (increasing the dues) will enable it to continue for several years to come."

THE REVISED schedule of dues is: initiatory or entrance fee $125; family membership (for golf) $200; social membership only $75; and inactive membership $33. Members who take an inactive membership may become active again by paying the annual dues but not the $125 entrance fee.

Along with the notice of the increase in dues, the board gave this explanation for its action: "The last few years, the boards have not been able to live within their budget. A few increased expenses in the past few years: include property taxes up 50 per cent — insurance up 65 per cent — equipment maintenance up 100 per cent — wages have been upgraded and need to be revised again — clubhouse needs repairs — traps (on golf course) need sand — fence around the club in poor condition etc."

PTO honors New Holland school staff

NEW HOLLAND — Principal Jean Creamer, the teachers, teachers' aides, cooks and the janitor of the elementary school here were honored this week at the Parent-Teacher Organization meeting. Mrs. Harold H. Thompson, president, stressed the value of cooperation in the education of the children.

The business session was opened with the Pledge of Allegiance led by Jeff Warner. The reports by the secretary and treasurer showed $429 cleared by the PTO on the auction and $890 netted on the candy sale.

Following a report by Harold Warner on PTO plans to buy a public address system for the school, the group voted to investigate the possibility of adding an intra-school communication system to it. The committee is to report its findings at the next meeting.

THE ANNUAL pet show was scheduled for the April 17 PTO meeting, and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Frantz were named chairmen to work out the details.

Principal Creamer announced that the spring vacation will be April 19-23 and that eighth graders will register for high school April 3 and 4.

The Junior High basketball team, coached by Mike Henry, which won the county league title, will be honored March 30 at a banquet at the school. The Biddy team coached by Charles Bowdle also will be honored at the dinner.

The PTO voted a contribution to the Miami Trace American Field Service program.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowdle, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. John Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. Errol Black, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ruth and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Swartz. Mrs. Paul Minshall was in charge of baby-sitting.

Truckers face fuel shortage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two trucking associations officials have told the Cleveland Plain Dealer that diesel fuel suppliers are beginning to cut back trucking companies allotments by as much as 25 per cent.

"We started getting complaints from our members late in December," said Washington's Martin Cromartie, a special assistant to the American Trucking Association, Inc. President, William Bresnahan.

"There were severe shortages of fuel in the Chicago area and the northern tier of Midwest states, including Wisconsin and Minnesota," he said, adding that some suppliers refused to bid on new contracts as old ones expired.

The Plain Dealer said some trucking executives in Ohio have estimated that they are paying 20 to 30 per cent more for diesel fuel than a year ago.

"But this shortage isn't local," said one executive. "There is a worldwide shortage of crude oil. The oil companies have been warning us about it for three years."

Other executives said allocations are smaller than the demand.

2 scientists predicting earthquake

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Two government scientists have forecast the strength, exact location and approximate time of an earthquake.

Dr. Robert Wesson and Dr. William Ellsworth of the National Center for Earthquake Research said Thursday they are predicting a moderate quake within "several months" near Hollister, Calif, about 100 miles southeast of San Francisco.

"If this prediction is fulfilled, it will be an important step toward more meaningful prediction, although a great deal more understanding needs to be gained about the generation of earthquakes," Wesson, 29, said.

"We've made a limited type of prediction in a place called Bear Valley," near Hollister, the U.S. Geological Survey scientist said.

The center's chief, Dr. Robert Wallace, said the predicted quake would occur a little over four miles deep, would be felt as a sharp jolt above ground, but would not cause damage.

Wesson said a quake never before had been forecast from only physical evidence. "We decided to stick our neck out," he said, "because the observed physical evidence was so outstanding and suggestive." The prediction is "unique" since it was formulated on the basis of physical events instead of statistics, Wesson said.

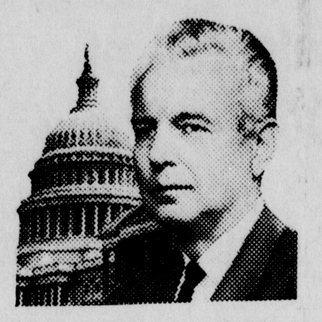
WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio



WASHINGTON — Arising out of the Vietnam peace settlement is the controversial question of reconstruction aid to North Vietnam.

While discussion of such aid is not particularly new and dates back as far as 1965 when a one billion dollar figure was quoted, the amount suggested now centers around 7½ billion dollars for all of Indochina, with roughly 2½ billion dollars earmarked for North Vietnam.

I am adamantly opposed to spending over our dwindling federal funds for this purpose. The American taxpayer simply cannot afford it. Furthermore, I fail to see where any such expenditures will purchase a firmer peace in Southeast Asia or lessen our involvement in the conflict.

Here in America, we are warring with inflation to the point that the President might possibly have to consider price controls on food and has already made drastic cuts in many domestic programs. Time and time again, the American taxpayer has invested literally billions of dollars into foreign aid and, time and time again, the returns in international goodwill and actual accomplishments have failed miserably or, at best, fallen far short of their intended purpose.

Indeed, there is every reason to believe that aid to North Vietnam would not be any different. In fact, the circumstances as they now stand indicate that U.S. reconstruction aid could complicate things considerably.

WHILE a cease-fire agreement has been reached on paper and while it is reasonable to assume that sporadic fighting could continue for some time, violations by the North Vietnamese appear to be intensifying. Recent intelligence reports reveal that heavy arms and munitions are once again being transported down the Ho Chi Minh Trail by the North Vietnamese.

One estimate is that the North Vietnamese have sent more than 400 armored vehicles, including tanks which are generally used as offensive weapons, into South Vietnam since the cease-fire. They are cropping up farther south than they have ever been at any other time.

Coupled with reports that Hanoi has more than 65,000 new troops in the pipeline or already inside South Vietnam, these facts certainly leave one to wonder, and rightly so, just where the billions of American reconstruction dollars would go: to a stronger peace or to another war?

SOME PROPONENTS of aid to North Vietnam argue that this money is owed to the country due to American bombings of Hanoi and to the fact that the U.S. has offered such assistance for former U.S. emeny countries in the past.

First of all, if North Vietnam is so utterly "devastated" and broke, where does it get the money to persist in stockpiling heavy weapons in the South? On the second point, it should be made clear that after World War II, both Germany and Japan surrendered unconditionally to the Allied forces after which they received substantial U.S. aid.

North Vietnam, however, denies its aggression toward South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia as well as its gross violations of international law, especially toward U.S. prisoners of war. North Vietnam has also maintained that U.S. aid would be considered just "reparations".

AND WHERE, might I ask, are the many nations who aided North Vietnam or profitted financially from the conflict: To date, there is little indication that any of these countries would be willing to supply assistance — if any at all — in the neighborhood of the billions of dollars considered by the United States.

At this time, negotiations on this very subject of reconstruction aid are taking place in Paris between the U.S. and North Vietnam, but the final determination on just what form, if any, this assistance will take hinges partly on congressional approval.

However, if the cease-fire violations and the military build up by the North Vietnamese in Southeast Asia persit, I do not see how the American public — which has already paid dearly for this war — could tolerate any such expenditure whatsoever.

City cleanup starts tiff

MILLERSPORT, Ohio (AP) — Concerned citizens of Millersport started out to do the state a favor and ended up embroiled in a controversy with the Department of Natural Resources, with Mayor Irvin Wilson claiming a state official threatened him with arrest.

The dispute began when citizens turned out to clean up the banks of a state-owned canal. They said they cleared away several truck loads of litter and dead vegetation. They burned much of it.

State parks officials called Wilson in for a meeting and told him that cutting vegetation on state park land and open burning of waste require special permission which Wilson didn't have.

A department spokesman said Wilson asked what would happen if the cleanup proceeded without the necessary state approval and was told he could be subject to arrest.

"Citizen cleanups are very laudable," said spokesman Marv Katz. "But there are certain restrictions."

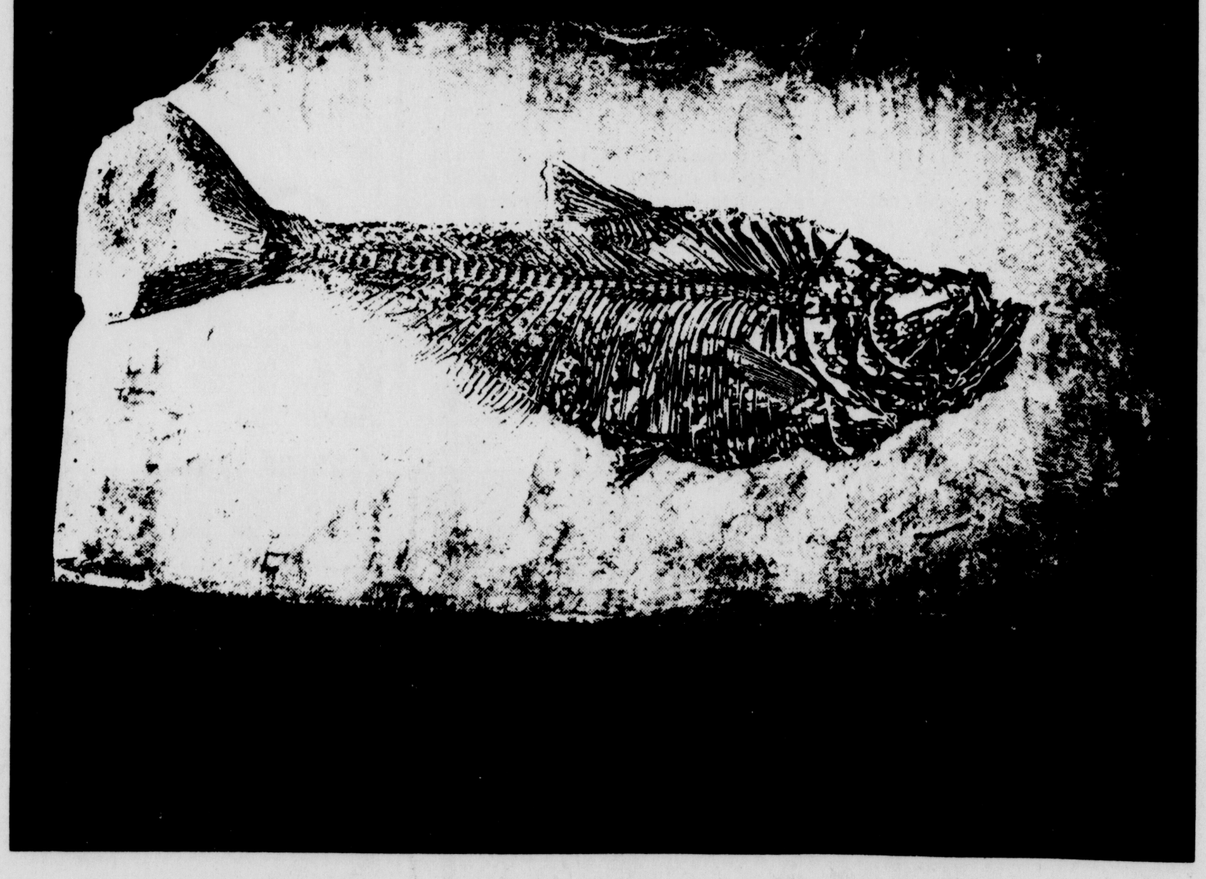
Could this be the only fish your grandchild ever sees?



By the end of this century, the waters of our world may be lifeless. Since the beginning of this century, contaminating wastes dumped into our lakes, rivers and streams have increased 600%. Fish are dying. And the water we drink doesn't taste quite the same.

We have a very few years to reverse this ugly trend. It's a job for people. For people in government and major industry. For independent businessmen, like us. For individuals, like you. It's a job for all of us, for all people who enjoy the water and realize how much it means to life.

It requires so little effort. Simply never throw trash in the water or anywhere near it. Report major cases of water pollution to authorities. Always set an example for others.

Water without fish, smelling and clogged with litter, is the only alternative. We think that your grandchildren, and ours, deserve better.

Ready eyes second prep title in row

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Pat Penn maintains his defending Ohio Class AA high school basketball tournament champion Columbus Ready squad has more at stake the second time around.

"We were really sort of awestruck last year," Penn said Friday night after the Silver Knights' depth and Jimmy Jones' 22 points ousted Bellefontaine 60-47 in the semifinals.

"This year our kids feel they have more to prove in defending that championship," Penn said.

Ready pits its 22-3 record against 18-7 Delphos St. John, the 1949 state Class B king, for the 1973 middle class championship tonight in Ohio State's St. John Arena.

St. John clipped Elyria Catholic 72-61 in the other Class AA semifinal.

Cincinnati Elder, 21-4, and Akron Central-Hower, 19-6, battled for their first state titles in Class AAA and Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South and Marion Pleasant, both 25-0, settled the Class A title earlier today.

Penn's No. 1 concern was the health of Jones, his 6-foot All-Ohio guard.

"Jimmy's been ill all week," said Penn, who rested his star junior nearly all of the third quarter. Then Jones rammed a basket support later in the period and was removed from the game for a while.

"That blow to the head didn't do too much to help him," Penn admitted, but said, "I'm pretty certain he'll be ready to play."

After Ready demolished his Chiefs with speed and a solid bench, Bellefontaine Coach Will Collins looked at the title showdown.

"I don't know who will win, but I'm certain it will be whichever team happens to be quicker in pressure situations," Collins said after the Chiefs bowed out with a 17-7 mark.

Unbeatens to clash for Class A crown

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The classic matchup of the 1973 Ohio state high school basketball tournament offered top-ranked Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South vs. No. 2 Marion Pleasant today for the Class A title.

The stakes were piled high for both 25-0 small school powers in the showdown that settled The Associated Press regular season struggle as well as the tournament winner.

Indian Valley South, which swept by Sebring 60-49 in the semifinals Friday, risked its 51-game winning streak and 1972 crown.

Marion Pleasant, a 63-53 semifinal winner over Mansfield St. Peter, could become the first team in any of Ohio's three classes to win the football and basketball crown in the same school year.

In the Class AAA title game at Ohio State's St. John Arena this morning, Cincinnati Elder, 21-4, and Akron Central-Hower, 19-6, both sought their first state championships.

Columbus Ready, 22-3, chases a second straight Class AA title against 18-7 Delphos St. John in the middle school championship contest tonight.

Charles Huggins, Indian Valley South's cautious coach, wasn't about to compare his 1972 champions with the team that made Sebring play the Rebels' deliberate style.

"I'll let you know more about that tomorrow," said Huggins. "Last year we won it. This year we still have something to prove."

Van Henry's 27 points and smooth handling of Indian Valley South's patient attack whipped Sebring, out with a 23-2 record.

McClain athletes ruled ineligible

GREENFIELD — The Ohio High School Athletic Association has ruled two Greenfield McClain athletes ineligible for spring sports on the basis of violating a rule governing competition in independent athletic events.

Buddy Kennedy, a member of Greenfield's track team, and Larry Crabtree, a third baseman on the McClain baseball squad, will not be eligible to participate this season after they played for a Greenfield independent basketball team in the Sinking Spring Invitational tournament last week, according to athletic director Fred Raike.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former Cincinnati Bengal quarterback Greg Cook, unheard from since shoulder problems forced his retirement three years ago, predicts a comeback and says "as far as I'm concerned I'm the No. 1 quarterback."

The brash blonde, who was Rookie of the Year in 1969, tossed down the challenge to Bengal quarterbacks Ken Anderson and Virgil Carter.

"They've got to beat me out," said Cook, the former University of Cincinnati star who was drafted No. 1 by the Bengals.

And if No. 12 does slip back into his uniform and make good his promise, he'll be throwing to a wealth of receiving talent.

Cincinnati's first three draft choices last January were receivers—and touted ones.

Olympic speedster Isaac Curtis of San Diego State heads the list of newcomers, followed by tight end Al Chandler of Oklahoma and Tim George of Carson-Newman.

Plus there's veteran Bob Trumpy, an All-Pro tight end.

Trumpy had one word for Cook's return: "fantastic."

The 26-year-old Cook completed 106 of 197 passes for 15 touchdowns in his only full season.

"Frankly, everyone feels he's going to be alright," said a team official Friday.

Coach Paul Brown said Cook has the ability "to move and inspire the team and to generate enthusiasm."

The 6-foot-4 Chillicothe, Ohio, native works out regularly and has been throwing the ball extremely well, according to reports.

Now living in Cincinnati, he'll face the major test at the Bengals' rookie camp in May.

Olga Korbut wins trophy, U.S. hearts

NEW YORK (AP) — Olga Korbut, the tiny Russian teenager who grew into the Woman Athlete of the Year at the 1972 Olympic Games, won a trophy and the hearts of the nation's largest city Friday night.

"It's like Saturday matinee at the movies," said an adult spectator in the youthful Madison Square Garden crowd of 19,964, a North American record for a gymnastics performance. Presentation of the Babe Didrickson Zaharias Trophy was the climax of the performance by the Russian women's gymnastics team. George Zaharias, a man-mountain of Greek sentiment several times Olga's size, presented her with the huge silver trophy.

Zaharias bent almost double leaning down to kiss the 89-pound Russian star on the cheek.

Olga, 17, clutching a silver miniature of a big trophy, paraded out with the other Russian girls, who carried bouquets of red roses.

At Zaharias' request, the large trophy will remain on display at the Museum of Sports Art in the Garden, where Zaharias wrestled professionally in years gone by.

NCAA basketball semifinals bring on cases of nerves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — This Midwest city was shrouded today in a war of nerves and basketball hysteria as Providence faced Memphis State and Indiana fought top-ranked UCLA in the semfinals prelude to Monday night's national collegiate championship showdown.

The battle of nerves centered around the coaches and players of the three teams which are underdogs and possessing dreams of dethroning UCLA, winner of six consecutive national titles and a heavy favorite to annex number seven.

With Big Ten champion Indiana, of course, UCLA was the immediate problem since the hotshot Hoosiers had a 4:10 p. m., EST, date with the proud Bruins, unbeaten in 73 straight games over three seasons.

Bob Knight, the Hoosier coach, said he planned to "do the same things we have done in 26 games this season. I'm not smart enough to devise something tricky to play anybody."

Knight said he had had suggestions from people "from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Bangor, Maine on how to play UCLA" but that he "hasn't used any of them. I've been accused of a lot of things but not running the operation myself isn't one of them."

Knight denied sixth-ranked Indiana would employ the freeze against the Bruins but Coach John Wooden of UCLA predicted the Hoosiers would stall.

Wooden said he "wouldn't change our game to play anybody. We're not awed by being in the semfinals. Experience is a big thing. I have always said I'd rather have talent than experience."

Told that everybody was conceding the championship to UCLA, Wooden smiled and said:

"That's a nice position. I wish the right people would concede it. The ones who are conceding us the championship are the ones who aren't playing."

All-age baseball clinic scheduled

A baseball clinic, designed for Fayette County persons of all ages interested in the sport, will be held from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday, March 31 at Washington Senior High School.

Persons attending the clinic, which is hoped to be an annual event, will receive valuable instruction from five persons, including the head baseball coaches at Washington C. H. and Miami Trace high school.

Rodger Mickle, head baseball coach at Washington C.H. who will be directing the clinic instruction, said seven topics will be discussed at the four-hour seminar.

Mickle, now in his second season as Washington C. H.'s head baseball coach, will speak on infield play, and Dave Pellior, the fourth-year head coach at Miami Trace, will talk of hitting.

OTHER SCHEDULED speakers and their topics are Dale Lynch, Washington C. H.'s reserve baseball coach, outfield play; Laurence (Bucky) Dumford, a Blue Lion assistant baseball coach this season, pitching, and former Washington C. H. baseball coach Bill Martin, catching. Base running and practice organization will also be discussed.

Members of the Washington C. H. Blue Lion baseball team will be used to demonstrate the techniques explained by the speakers.

Mickle said the purpose of the clinic is to give those interested the proper technique of playing and practicing the sport and to develop coaching points for youngsters.

The Blue Lion baseball mentor said he hopes 200-300 persons will attend the clinic, including fathers and sons, Little League and Babe Ruth players and coaches as well as other interested persons in Fayette County.

Door prizes such as baseballs, bats and hats will be given away, Mickle said, and there is a strong possibility that a film of the Cincinnati-Oakland World Series will be shown.

The daily double paid $169.20 as Dark Passage and Mai Amour, 6-4, won the first two races.

Second to Jack's Chevron was Babington, $12 and $6.80, and Mr. Muscle, $4.60.

12-hour Sebring auto race has Corvettes on the pole

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — With two raucous-sounding Corvettes leading the way from the front row, 70 production line sports cars were to be flagged away at 11 a.m., EST, today in the 23rd renewal of the Sebring 12-hour road race.

Tony DeLorenzo of Troy, Mich., was at the wheel of one of 7-liter machines and Dave Heinz of Tampa, Fla., at the other.

Their mission was to complete something over 220 laps or 1,190 miles around the ancient 5.2-mile Sebring airport course before the shutdown at 11 p.m.

DeLorenzo, a dark-haired near-sighted veteran from the Detroit auto plants, won the pole postion at a speed of 106.892 m.p.h.—a record for Grand Touring cars at Sebring.

Heinz, who spends a lot of time explaining that he isn't a member of the mustard and ketchup family even though he raced for years in a No. 57 car, qualified his Corvette at 105.170 m.p.h.

Another Corvette, this one wheeled by Bob Tullius of Falls Church, Va., Mike Murray of Toledo, Ohio, and Ike Knupt of Springfield, Mo., held a second row position beside a hot Porsche Carrera driven by Peter Gregg and Hurley Haywood.

Royal rookies twirl no-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'd rather have this happen on April 23 when it counts," said Kansas City rookie Steve Busby.

"I was thinking about the law of averages. Sometimes you follow a guy who's throwing a nohitter and everything breaks loose," added another rookie, Doug Bird.

Their comments followed their combined no-hitter Friday, a 4-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Detroit Tigers.

It was the first time the Tigers had been held hitless since Joe Horlen of the Chicago White Sox did it in September of 1967.

Bird yielded the lone Detroit run in the seventh as Norm Cash walked and pinch runner Joe Staton came around on a stolen base, passed ball and infield grounder.

The three Cruz brothers— Jose, Hector and Cirilo—started in the outfield and led St. Louis over the New York Mets 9-2. The trio got five of the Cardinals' 12 hits, Cirilo slamming a triple in the five-run seventh that locked up the victory for Bob Gibson.

In other games, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, the Atlanta Braves topped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, the Houston Astros slipped past the Minnesota Twins 4-3, the Cleveland Indians tripped the Chicago Cubs 2-1, the Boston Red Sox downed the Chicago White Sox 7-6 in 10 innings, the Oakland A's beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, the San Francisco Giants belted the California Anges 6-1, the Montreal Expos tamed the Baltimore Orioles 2-1, the Cubs downed the Brewers 4-1 in a 'B' squad contest and the New York Yankees nipped the Texas Rangers 3-2 in 16 innings.

White Sox outfielder Carlos May suffered a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg as Chicago defeated Boston 7-6 in 10 innings. He is expected to be sidelined 2-3 weeks.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with a pair of homers in the Cubs' 'B' victory over the Brewers. Ferguson Jenkins worked seven innings for the Cubs, yielding five singles and one run.

Willie McCovey blasted a two-run homer off Nolan Ryan in the fourth inning and Juan Marichal pitched six innings of two-hit ball as the Giants defeated the Angels.

Charlie Spikes' sixth home run of the exhibition season, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, gave the Indians their victory over the Cubs in a rain-shortened game.

Fred Stanley's single and Johnny Callison's double in the bottom of the 16th inning gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Paul Casanova knocked in the Braves' winning run with a single in the seventh inning against the Phillies. The Reds scored three runs in the fourth and got five-hit pitching from Jim McGlothlin and Ed Sprague to defeat the Dodgers.

A sacrifice fly by Lee May and Jim Wynn's single produced two runs in the ninth inning to boost the Astros past the Twins.

GETS JOB BACK — R. Gordon Rule (above) has been reinstated as the Navy's top cost cutter, a post he lost after telling a Senate panel about weapons-contract negotiations. Pentagon sources announced his return.

Returnee remembers ill fated day

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— After missile narrowly missed Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Stackhouse's A4 Skyhawk, a trailing MIG poured bullets into his plane and the native of suburban Cincinnati thought to himself, "this is going to be a bad day."

The former prisioner of war then recalled the chilling moments his burning plane descended into North Vietnamese territory near Haiphong six years ago, almost to the day.

Stackhouse, who has gained back six of the 46 pounds he lost while in captivity, returned to his former hometown Thursday, shrugging off a hero's welcome with "I was just doing my job."

Suburban Norwood was celebrating Charles Stackhouse Day and the gaunt veteran was greeted by his brother, Air Force Maj. William Stackhouse upon arrival at the Greater Cincinnati Airport.

Originally listed dead by the military when witnesses reported no parachute from his burning plane, Stackhouse credited "the ability to laugh and a tremendous faith in God and country" with carrying him through.

"I never became a religious zealot. I just became deep friends with God," he said.

Fight coming on troops in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Congress may do battle on a new front later this year when Senate Democrats push for a sharp cut in the number of U.S. servicemen stationed abroad, with the emphasis on Western Europe.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield already has taken the first step toward that likely confrontation.

He believes inflation, the budget squeeze, and the woes of the dollar will strengthen the case and the potential Senate vote for troop cuts—a vote the administration would fiercely oppose.

The White House has denounced as irresponsible any move to force unilateral U.S. troop reductions. The talk and the tactics may get tougher.

Two years ago, the issue produced one of the most intensive of lobbying drives by the Republican administration, to block a Mansfield measure that would have halved the U.S. force stationed in Europe.

Mansfield and his allies are braced for another round on the troop question, perhaps during the summer when the Senate begins shaping the defense budget. That would add a new item to an agenda of White House-congressional disputes now centered on domestic spending.

The initial move came when Senate Democrats voted overwhelmingly to seek over the next 18 months a substantial reduction in the 600,000 U.S. troops now stationed overseas. Their resolution mandates Mansfield to confer with House and administration leaders about such cuts.

While the wording is general, the key target—and a familiar one for Mansfield—is a cutback of U.S. troops in Europe, where some 300,000 remain.

They have tried before, and lost. The White House deployed virtually every lobbyist at its command, even enlisted leaders out of the Democratic past, in its campaign against cutbacks two years ago.

Now, he contends, no single act would do more to check inflation at home and "the enfeeblement of the dollar abroad."

The White House said it would make no sense for the United States to cut its force levels unilaterally amid negotiations with the Soviet Union for mutual troop cuts in Europe.

Mansfield says as long as U.S. forces stay put in Europe, the Russians will be under no pressure to move out.

The question is not only one of troops, it is of military dependents in Europe, too. Mansfield put the total at some 525,000, and said there are billions of dollars to be saved through cutbacks.

There is another, simpler argument advanced in the Senate: Why should the United States maintain such a force in Europe, long after World War II, in defense of allies whose economies are flourishing?

In the months ahead, Mansfield and his supporters are going to be pressing for an answer.

Dry cleaning group holds meeting here

Eighteen members of the board of directors of the Ohio Dry Cleaners Association discussed ways to improve safety in the dry cleaning business at a meeting here Thursday.

The dry cleaners came here from throughout the state at the invitation of Hugh Patton, owner of the Sunshine Laundry and Dry Cleaning business. The association president, Phil Myers, of Ashland, conducted the meeting following dinner in the Terrace Lounge.

Bees trip on kowhai

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand's golden-flowered kow-hai tree is being blamed for sending thousands of bees on a drug "trip."

The bees were found in an apparent coma on the banks of the Mokihinui River.

Officials of the Agriculture and Fisheries Department say the kowhai has a narcotic effect on bees, which can suffer hallucinations after sipping the nectar. The bees usually recover.

Killed the polluters

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern about air pollution and quality of the environment goes back centuries. According to the editors of the new, 38th edition of "Steam," a technical book published by the Babcock & Wilcox Co. since 1875 for colleges and universities: " . . . at one time people were executed in England for burning coal because it produced highly noxious and dangerous fumes."

Speaking of Your Health...

Hormone Artificially Created

Two tiny parathyroid glands lie deep within the thyroid gland in the middle of the neck. These pinpoint hormone-producing glands play a vital role in the function of almost every organ of the body. A small segment of these glands produces a hormone whose exact nature has been elusive, although recognized as important.

When a deficiency of the parathyroid glands has been known to exist, replacement had to come from the parathyroids of animals.

Today a group of scientists, at the National Institutes of Health and at the Mayo Clinic, have artificially created (synthesized) the important parathyroid hormone. It is expected that unlimited amounts will be available soon for the treatment of conditions that depend on its use.

At the University of Toronto, Dr. John T. Murphy and his team are using a computer which is painlessly attached to a cat's brain in an effort to learn more about diseases like Parkinsonism.

The movement of a single muscle of a cat produces electrical vibrations that are recorded and interpreted. Even the early studies have already shown important relationships between parts of the brain and the complex movement of muscles that make us function.

After intestinal surgery, it is most important for the doctor to know exactly when the bowel begins to function again.

Peristalsis is a term used to describe the wave-like movements that occur normally all along the intestinal tract.

Sometimes, after surgery, these movements do not quickly reappear. This causes concern because it is an unwanted complication.

Dr. Peter R. Daggett, of the Westminster Hospital in London, has devised a method for earlier recognition of the slightest peristaltic waves as they begin to return in the intestine. Previously, a stethoscope was used to hear these sounds of motion.

Using ultrasonic vibrations (ultrasound), Dr. Daggett can detect bowel activity earlier than before. This method has great importance in overcoming a complication that is of great distress to the patient and to the physician.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH. Gnawing the inside of the cheeks can cause chronic irritation of the delicate lining of the mouth. This mucous membrane can be scarred by the persistence of this habit. It should be controlled.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

The loser-on-loser play is a weapon that every competent declarer carries in his bag of tricks. It is a play by which he deliberately concedes a trick he doesn't have to lose in exchange for one he does have to lose — and winds up gaining some other trick he would otherwise have lost.

Here is a simple case where West leads a club against six spades. Declarer wins, draws two rounds of trumps and finesses the jack of hearts.

When it wins, he ruffs a club and finesses the queen of hearts. At this point, instead of simply cashing the ace in the hope of finding the suit divided 3-3, declarer first makes the more subtle move of ruffing dummy's last club.

The purpose of the ruff is to protect to the nth degree against the possibility of losing two diamond tricks, which at this point is the sole danger in the hand.

South then plays a heart to the ace, supremely confident of the outcome. When the hearts fail to divide 3-3, declarer does not attempt a diamond finesse — which would prove fatal as the cards lie — but instead leads dummy's last heart and on it discards a diamond.

The result is that West wins the heart and finds himself in the unpleasant position where he must lead a diamond to the A-Q or yield a ruff and discard by returning a club. Either way declarer makes the slam.

What South really does by this method of play is exchange one loser for another. He deliberately loses a heart trick he doesn't have to lose instead of a diamond he does have to lose. In the process he creates a situation that is certain to yield him the crucial twelfth trick. Who could ask for anything more?

Proxmire bares tax return; hair transplant cost $2,758

WASHINGTON (AP)—Estimating his net worth of $182,000, Sen. William Proxmire has published his 1972 federal income tax return in the Congressional Record.

It shows that the Wisconsin Democrat paid $2,758 for his celebrated hair transplant and wrote off the operation as a medical expense.

A number of senators print annual financial statements. Proxmire is the only one known to have made public his entire tax return.

Filing jointly with his wife, from whom he is separated but not divorced, Proxmire listed a total 1972 income of $70,198.

Of that, $42,500 came from his Senate salary, $19,707 from book royalties and speeches, $4,600 from his wife's catering business and $3,391 in interest.

The separate financial statement shows Proxmire owns two homes in Washington, D.C., on which he is paying off mortages and one home in Madison, Wis.

He listed checking and savings accounts with a combined balance of $3,500 and $96,000 in federal, state and municipal bonds.

Proxmire and his wife listed $3,574 in medical expenses as tax deductions, including the money spent on the hair transplant.

He listed 20 speeches for which he had been paid more than $300 each and said he had made a series of speeches for the Brookings Institute in Washington for $150 a speech.

According to the return, the Proxmires paid $15,852 in taxes, receiving a refund of $654 and crediting $864 to next year's tax.

Proxmire previously had disclosed his net worth—dating to the time he was elected to the Senate in 1957—in 1963, 1965, 1967, 1970, and 1972.

Ohio's crime fight plan is approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's $30 million comprehensive development plan for criminal justice has been approved by the federal government, Development Director David C. Sweet said Friday.

Sweet, at a news conference, called the 1973 plan "the most inclusive, encompassing blueprint for criminal justice ever prepared in this state."

Under the plan, some $12 million of the federal money would go to regional planning units in the state's six major urban centers—Toledo, Cleveland, Akron, Columbus, Cincinnati and Dayton.

In addition the state will be divided in four geographical regions for administrative planning, Sweet said. Seventy-five per cent of funds in the plan, he said, would go directly to units of local government.

In 1969, Sweet said, the state had no plan for handling federal crime-fight funds other than to buy riot control equipment.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the present program in Ohio is among the best in the nation," Sweet said. "We have turned a hardware program into a people program.

The plan, supervised by the Criminal Justice Supervisory Commission, allocated nearly 16 million to law enforcement; more than $1 million for crime prevention; nearly $3 million for the improvement of the judicial process and over $5 million for corrections and rehabilitation.

The district funding will be as follows: Northwest Ohio, $1,207,533; Northeast Ohio, $3,014,643; Southwest Ohio, $1,263,559 and Southeast Ohio, $1,621,268.

For the regional planning units the funding will be: Cleveland, $3,703,307; Columbus, $1,015,176; Cincinnati, $1,832,790; Dayton, $1,212,930; Akron, $1,141,160 and Toledo, $958,749.

Dystrophy drive nets $364 here

The house-to-house campaign in Washington C. H. to raise funds in the fight against muscular dystrophy netted $364.29, according to Miss Sandy Fackler, campaign chairman.

"We were very pleased with the support we received from the community," Miss Fackler said. "We would especially like to thank all the volunteer marchers in Washington C. H.," she said.

The monies raised in the annual campaign are used to support the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America's worldwide network of research facilities, including the Institute for Muscle Disease in New York City. Police hunt missing car, two 'prospective buyers'

City police are looking for two Fayette County men in connection with a possible conversion of trust incident occurring at Don's Auto Sales, 518 Clinton Ave.

Police said the two had driven a car from the used car lot Tuesday, promising to return to pay for the vehicle on Wednesday. Dale Ward, operator of the business, said he had not seen the two men since, and all attempts to make contact with them had failed.

Ward said one of the men had been to the lot earlier and had driven the car, then returned later with his friend. The two allegedly told Ward they wanted to purchase the car and would return with payment the next day.

The car a 1969 Buick, was valued at $1,600.

NINE WINDOWS in a garage owned by Glendon Yerian, Ohio 38, were broken out sometime overnight Thursday, police report. The garage was located at 316 Walnut St. Damage was set at $50.

Raymond Greer, Jamestown, reported to sheriff's deputies the theft of two batteries from his disabled car parked on McKillip Road, near Jeffersonville, early Saturday.

Greer said he parked the car about 12:30 a.m. when it developed engine trouble. When he returned to the vehicle at 2:30 a.m. a battery on the back seat and the one under the hood were both gone. Loss was estimated at $37.

KIRKPATRICK FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,

The funeral can be a worthwhile experience if it meets the religious, social and psychological needs of the bereaved family and mourners. The arrangements for the funeral are important in giving the mourners some useful and helpful things to do. This serves to confirm the reality of physical death so that grief can gradually give way to recovery of a wholesome mental attitude.

Respectfully,

Richard Kirkpatrick
